BY THE NUMBERS

3.8

The Raiders defense is now allowing 3.8 yards per rush in 2025, the second lowest mark in the NFL.

6.0

DE Maxx Crosby now has 6.0 sacks on the season, a number he has reached in each of his seven career seasons. That is the second-longest streak by a Raider since player sacks were first recorded in 1982, behind a nine-season streak by Greg Townsend Sr. (1983-1991).

27

The Raiders defense has forced 27 three-and-outs by opponents in 2025, tied for the sixth most in the NFL.

97

LB Devin White currently leads the Raiders with 97 tackles. His 97 tackles are also the fourth most in the NFL.

400+

DE Maxx Crosby now has 406 career tackles, becoming one of eight defensive linemen in the NFL since 2000 to reach 400 career tackles in his first seven NFL seasons.

WHAT TO WATCH FOR

With 1.0 sack, DE Maxx Crosby would notch his seventh season with 7.0+ sacks. He would become one of 11 players in NFL history (since 1982) to record 7.0+ sacks in each of his first seven NFL seasons. With one tackle for loss, Crosby would reach 15 TFLs on the season, his fourth consecutive season with 15+ TFLs. He would be one of only three players in the NFL with four straight seasons of 15+ TFLs (Myles Garrett and Brian Burns). His four-season streak would be tied for the fourth longest streak since 2000.

SMITH 7

- With a 100.0+ passer rating and at least 20 attempts, Smith would notch his 24th game with that stat line since becoming a full-time starter in 2022. His 24 games would be tied for the fourth most in the NFL over that span.
- With 300+ passing yards, Smith would notch his 15th 300-yard game since 2022, tied for the fourth most in the NFL over that span (Joe Burrow).
- With a 70.0% completion percentage or better and at least 20 attempts, Smith would notch his 26th game with that stat line since 2022, the second most in the NFL over that span.

PETE CARROLL

Pete Carroll was named Head Coach of the Las Vegas Raiders by Owner Mark Davis on Jan. 25, 2025, pairing one of the most accomplished and respected coaches in pro football history with the iconic NFL franchise. Carroll, whose storied coaching career has spanned the past five decades, joins the Silver and Black following 14 seasons as the most successful head coach in Seattle Seahawks history, a tenure that came at the heels of a dynastic nine-year run in the college ranks at USC.

Carroll's overall NFL head coaching record is 170-120-1 (.586) in the regular season and 11-11 in the postseason. In his 18 years of NFL head coaching, his 181 combined wins are the 16th-most in NFL history. Carroll guided the Seahawks to back-to-back Super Bowl appearances and a Super Bowl XLVIII victory following the 2013 season. His career as an NFL head coach has also included posts with the New York Jets (1994) and the New England Patriots (1997-99).

In his tenure as head coach in Seattle from 2010-23, Carroll helped construct the best teams in franchise history with a 137-89-1 record, two Super Bowl appearances, 10-plus wins in five consecutive seasons (2012-16) for the first time in franchise history, and five NFC West Division titles.

Seattle reached the postseason in 10 of Carroll's 14 seasons as coach, advanced to the divisional round seven times, won two NFC Championships and one Super Bowl, while claiming the No. 1 seed in the NFC twice. Under Carroll's watch, Seattle led the NFL in scoring defense for four-consecutive seasons from 2012-15, becoming the first defense in the Super Bowl era to accomplish that feat.

In 2023, Carroll's final campaign on the Seattle sidelines, the Seahawks posted the team's 11th season with a winning record in 12 years.

Carroll has been successful in establishing a winning culture behind a philosophy of team growth through competition with a strong emphasis on protecting the football. This was evident with Seattle returned to the postseason in 2022 as the NFC's seventh seed with a 9-8 record in the regular season. Seattle needed to win its final two games to join the playoff field, and the Seahawks were successful, helping Carroll became the ninth head coach in NFL history to make the playoffs in 12 different seasons.

The 2021campaign was an uncharacteristic one for Seattle, as the Seahawks missed the postseason for the first time since 2017. However, after a disappointing 3-8 start, Carroll's Seahawks finished strong, rattling off four wins in their final six games, helped by the emergence of Seattle's running game, finishing the season with 1,056 rushing yards since Week 13, most in the NFL. Seattle scored 30 or more points in each of those wins.

In a year impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, the 2020 Seahawks concluded the season with a 12- 4 record and as champions of the NFC West. It was the 11th division title in franchise history and fifth under Carroll, tying Mike Holmgren for the most by a Seattle head coach. It was the 14th time in 18 seasons that Seattle qualified for the postseason and ninth time in Carroll's 11 seasons as head coach. The Seahawks scored a franchise-record 459 points while winning 12 or more games for the fifth time in club history.

Carroll's 2019 team held a 10-2 record through the first three quarters of the season but despite an uncharacteristic 1-3 mark to finish the year secured the no. 5 seed in the NFC playoffs, winning the Wild Card Game and advancing to the Divisional Round for the seventh time in the last 10 seasons. Posting a franchise-best 7-1 road record, Seattle reached 10 wins for the seventh time in eight seasons, something accomplished only five times in franchise history from 1976-2011. The Seahawks became the second team in NFL history to win 10 one-score games in a single season, joining the 1978 Oilers (10-6 record) and Carroll earned his 100th regular season win in franchise history, extending his own franchise record.

The 2018 Seahawks exceeded some expectations as they won 10 games for the sixth time in seven seasons and advanced to the Wild Card playoffs. After a 4-5 start to the season, Seattle became the 28th team with a losing record after nine games to advance to the postseason, scoring the second-most points in franchise history (428) and leading the NFL with a rushing attack that accumulated 2,560 yards, the third-most in franchise history, marking the top-three rushing seasons all under Carroll (2012, 2014, 2018).

Seattle concluded the 2017 season with a 9-7 record and a second place finish in the NFC West. Despite significant injuries on the defensive side of the ball and missing its top-two running backs, Seattle entered the final-quarter of the season with an 8-4 record and remained in the hunt for an NFC West.

The Seahawks won the 10th division title in franchise history in 2016 with a 10-5-1 record. Seattle's defense finished in the top five for the fifth consecutive season (2012-16), an impressive feat during an era of unprecedented scoring and yardage numbers in NFL history. Seattle's NFL-record streak of not losing by more than 10 points in 85 regular season games (95 games including playoffs) ended at Green Bay (12/11/16), and its NFL-record streak of 88 regular season games (98 games including playoffs) where it has led or been within one score in the fourth quarter came to an end at Tampa Bay (11/27/16).

After beginning the 2015 season 0-2, 2-4 and 4-5, the Seahawks became the 22nd team with a losing record after nine games to advance to the postseason, winning six of their last seven games to post a 10-6 record and finishing in the top-10 in defense for a franchise-record fifth consecutive season (2011-15). Seattle defeated the Vikings in Minnesota in the Wild Card round before bowing out to Carolina on the road in the divisional round.

Seattle's defense finished 2015 ranked second (291.8 ypg) while the offense ranked fourth in the NFL (378.6 ypg), setting the franchise-record with 6,058 yards. It was the fourth time in franchise history, the first since 2005, with a top-five offense.

The team won its ninth division title in club history in 2014, third under Carroll, after winning the NFC West with a 12-4 record. Seattle fell to New England, 28-24, in Super Bowl XLIX in Glendale, Ariz., in a season that saw it begin 3-3 but finish the season with a 9-1 record and the No. 1 seed in the NFC for the second consecutive season.

The Seahawks also became the fourth team in NFL history to lead the league in the fewest points and yards allowed in back-to-back seasons (2013- 14), and first since the 1985-86 Chicago Bears. The Seahawks led the league in defense for the second straight year while the offense had the No. 1-ranked rushing attack with a franchise-record 2,762 yards and ranked in the top-10 in offense (ninth overall) for the first time since the 2007 season.

In 2013, Carroll led Seattle to its first Super Bowl title in franchise history with a resounding 43-8 victory over the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XLVIII in New York/New Jersey on February 2, 2014, after a franchise-best 13-3 regular season record, and joined Jimmy Johnson and Barry Switzer as the only coaches to win a college football national title and a Super Bowl in their career.

Carroll and Seattle General Manager John Schneider constructed one of the best defenses in the last 12 years at the time, leading them to the NFL title. The Seahawks defense ranked first overall in the NFL in total defense (273.6 ypg), passing defense (172.0 ypg), points allowed (14.4 ppg), takeaways (39), interceptions (28), turnover differential (+20) and opponent quarterback rating (63.4).

The youngest Super Bowl-winning roster in NFL history (26 years, 162 days) was led by second-year QB Russell Wilson, who became the third youngest quarterback to win the title game (25 years, 65 days).

In 2012, Carroll led Seattle to the NFC Divisional Playoff, posting the fourth-best record in franchise history (11-5). Seattle won its first postseason road game since 1983 with a Wild Card Game victory at Washington.

One of the youngest teams in the NFL to end the season for the second-consecutive year (second overall, third-youngest defensive starters, fourth-youngest offensive starters), Seattle started 4-4 but went on to finish the season 7-1 led by the rookie Wilson and the league's fourth-ranked defense, that also led the league allowing 245 points (15.3 ppg).

Carroll's 2011 squad also ranked as one of the youngest in the NFL, beginning the season with the second-youngest roster in Week 1, once having the third-youngest offensive line during the season and ending the year with the second-youngest starting defensive unit in the league.

He saw his 2011 defense improve weekly, ending the season ranked ninth in the league in total defense, just the sixth time Seattle had boasted a top-10 defense and first since 1997. His offense switched gears from a quick strike, no-huddle group to a grind-it-out ground game led by RB Marshawn Lynch over the last half of the season. That offensive mentality helped Seattle rank fifth in the NFL with 1,212 rush yards over the last nine games of the season.

Always competing, the Seahawks jumped out to a 4-2 record to begin the 2010 season and parlayed that into the club's fifth NFC West title in the past seven seasons, punctuating the season with a 41-36 victory over the defending Super Bowl Champion New Orleans Saints at Lumen Field in the Wild Card Game.

Carroll returned to the NFL after spending nine years (2001-09) as head coach at USC, where he won seven consecutive Pac-10 titles (2002-08), two national championships (2003-04) and led the Trojans to a 97-19 (.836) record. He reached a bowl in each of his nine seasons and won seven of those contests. His 88 victories from 2001 to 2008 tied Bob Pruett of Marshall for most by a Division I coach in their first eight seasons since 1900 (Penn's George Woodruff - 102). He reached 50 career USC wins faster than any head coach in Trojans history. From 2002-08, his teams appeared in an NCAA-record seven consecutive BCS bowls, recorded at least 11 victories seven times (an NCAA record) and finished ranked in the AP top-four each year. USC was the AP's No. 1 team for a national-record 33 straight polls (including two preseason polls) and was ranked in the AP Top-10 for a school-record 63 consecutive games. His teams were ranked in the AP Top-25 for 102 consecutive games, a school record. In 2009, he was named Coach of the Decade by Lindy's.

Also under Carroll, USC was the first school to have three Heisman Trophy winners in a four-year span (QB Carson Palmer, QB Matt Leinart, RB Reggie Bush). He also coached winners of the Walter Camp, Chuck Bednarik, Johnny Unitas, Doak Walker and John Mackey Awards. Carroll produced 34 All-American first-teamers and 53 NFL draft picks (including 14 first rounders, with a No. 1 selection in Palmer and a No. 2 pick in Bush). His USC program had the nation's most draftees in 2006, 2008 and 2009.

USC posted a 12-1 record in 2008 and advanced to its fourth consecutive Rose Bowl, defeating Penn State, 38-24, to become the first team to win three straight Rose Bowls. In the polls, the Trojans finished ranked second by USA Today and third by AP. USC finished first in scoring defense (9.8 ppg, its finest in 41 years), surrendering just 14 touchdowns in 2008.

In 2007, USC went 11-2 and finished second in the USA Today poll and third in the AP poll, for its sixth-straight AP Top-4 ranking. USC's 49-17 win over Illinois in the Rose Bowl equaled the most points ever in the bowl game. Five players were named All-American first-team selections.

USC posted an 11-2 mark in 2006, finished No. 4 in the final polls and shared the Pac-10 title at 7-2 to capture an unprecedented fifth straight conference crown. Five Trojans were All-American first-teamers and Carroll was named the Pac-10 Coach of the Year for the third time.

Carroll's Trojans held AP's No. 1 ranking for the entire regular season in 2005. USC went 12-1 overall to advance to the BCS Championship Game in the Rose Bowl. The Trojans, who finished second in both polls, boasted a school-record six All-American first-team selections, including Heisman Trophy-winning tailback Bush. He was the 2005 Pac-10 Co-Coach of the Year, as well as the American Football Coaches Association Division I-A Region 5 Coach of the Year.

In 2004, he guided No. 1-ranked USC to its second consecutive national championship with a convincing win over Oklahoma in the BCS Championship Game in the Orange Bowl. USC became only the second team ever to hold its AP preseason No. 1 ranking all the way through a season. It was only the 10th time that a team won back-to-back AP crowns. His team was 13-0, setting a program record for wins, and went 8-0 in the Pac-10. A school-record six Trojans were named All-American first-team.

In 2003, the Trojans won the AP national championship, its first national crown since 1978, and entered the Rose Bowl also ranked No. 1 in the USA Today/ESPN poll. USC was 12-1 overall and finished the season ranked second. USC's 534 points set a Pac-10 record. Five Trojans were first-team All-Americans. Carroll was named the 2003 American Football Coaches Association Division I-A Coach of the Year, Home Depot National Coach of the Year, Maxwell Club College Coach of the Year, ESPN.com National Coach of the Year, Pigskin Club of Washington D.C. Coach of the Year and All-American Football Foundation Frank Leahy Co-Coach of the Year. He also was named the Pac-10 Co-Coach of the Year.

In 2002, USC posted its first 11-win season since 1979 and obtained its highest ranking (No. 4) since 1988. Heisman Trophy-winning QB Palmer and S Troy Polamalu were named first-team All-Americans.

Carroll was named USC's head football coach on December 15, 2000, and in his first season, led the Trojans to the Las Vegas Bowl and a 6-6 record.

He began his coaching career at the collegiate level, serving as a graduate assistant at his alma mater, Pacific, for three years (1974-76), working with the wide receivers and secondary. He then spent a season as a graduate assistant working with the secondary at Arkansas (1977) under Lou Holtz, helping the Razorbacks win the 1978 Orange Bowl, and then a season each as an assistant in charge of the secondary at Iowa State (1978) and at Ohio State (1979). He spent the following three seasons (1980-82) as the defensive coordinator and secondary coach at North Carolina State, before returning to Pacific in 1983 as the assistant head coach and offensive coordinator.

KEVIN STEFANSKI

Kevin Stefanski was named the 18th full-time head coach in Cleveland Browns history on January 13, 2020. He spent the previous 14 seasons with the Minnesota Vikings, where he moved up the coaching ladder from assistant to the head coach to offensive coordinator. Stefanski has led the team to two postseason appearances and two 11-win seasons.

He joined Pro Football Hall of Famer Paul Brown (1951 and 1953) as the only coaches in team history to record multiple seasons with at least 11 regular season wins. Stefanski became the 16th coach to win the Associated Press NFL Coach of the Year award multiple times since its inception in 1957. Stefanski won the honors in 2020 and 2023 and joined Forrest Gregg (1976) as the only Browns coaches to win the award.

During the Browns 78-year history, the team has surpassed 6,000 scrimmage yards in a single season just seven times, but have reached the mark in all four seasons under Stefanski. Since 2020, the Browns are third in the NFL with an average of 139.6 rushing yards per game.

In his first season with the Browns, Stefanski led the team to its first playoff appearance since 2002 and first playoff victory in 26 years. He notched the most wins (11) by a first-year Browns head coach since Paul Brown had 12 in the team's inaugural season in 1946. Stefanski's 11 regular season wins were the most by a first-year head coach in 2020 and marked just the 11th time since 1970 a first-year coach has won 11 or more games. Stefanski was named the NFL Coach of the Year.

Stefanski helped several Browns earn individual honors as DE Myles Garrett and RT Jack Conklin were named first-team All-Pros by the Associated Press, while G Joel Bitonio and G Wyatt Teller each earned second team honors. Garrett, Bitonio and RB Nick Chubb were selected to the Pro Bowl.

In 2021, the Browns led the NFL in rushing average with a 5.09 mark, which helped Chubb finish second in the league in rushing yards. The club's rush average was the highest by a Browns team since 1966. The team's 6,090 scrimmage yards were the fourth-most by the club in a single-season.

In 2022, the Browns recorded the third highest-rushing total in team history with 2,490. Chubb finished third in the NFL with 1,525 rushing yards. The team's 6,200 scrimmage yards were the second most in team history.

In 2023, the Browns claimed several on-field awards. In addition to Stefanski winning NFL Coach of the Year, DE Myles Garrett was named the Defensive Player of the Year, QB Joe Flacco won NFL Comeback Player of the Year and Defensive Coordinator Jim Schwartz was named NFL Assistant Coach of the Year.

Kevin Stefanski was named the 18th full-time head coach in Cleveland Browns history on January 13, 2020. He spent the previous 14 seasons with the Minnesota Vikings, where he moved up the coaching ladder from assistant to the head coach to offensive coordinator. Stefanski won the honors in 2020 and 2023 and joined Forrest Gregg (1976) as the only Browns coaches to win the award.

Stefanski joined the Vikings in 2006 as an assistant to the head coach and remained with the organization under three different head coaches. After serving as assistant quarterbacks coach from 2009-13, Stefanski spent two seasons (2014-15) coaching the tight ends and one season (2016) as running backs coach.

In 2019, the Vikings posted a 10-6 record and earned their first road playoff win since January 9, 2005, after defeating the Saints, 26-20, in New Orleans. Three offensive players were selected to the Pro Bowl as RB Dalvin Cook and FB C.J. Ham were each named to their first career Pro Bowl with Cook voted as a starter. QB Kirk Cousins was also named to the Pro Bowl.

As quarterbacks coach in 2017, the Vikings were forced to go to their backup, Case Keenum, early in the season after starter Sam Bradford went down with an injury. Keenum, who had completed 58 percent of his passes previously owned a 9-15 career record as a starter, went on to complete nearly 68 percent of his throws with 22 touchdowns and seven interceptions while leading the Vikings to a record of 11-3.

COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

The Raiders - who began play in the American Football League in 1960 – are in their 66th year of professional football competition, including the last 55 as a member of the National Football League. In seven memorable decades - the 1960s, '70s, '80s, '90s, 2000s, 2010s and 2020s - the Raiders have been dominant in professional football since Al Davis first pledged in 1963 to build the finest organization in pro sports.

During these decades of dominance, the Raiders have won an AFL championship, four American Football Conference championships, and three World Championships of Professional Football, participated in five Super Bowls, played in 14 championship games, won or tied for 17 division championships, had 23 playoff seasons, finished 38 seasons at .500 or better and played in 45 postseason games.

Pro football's dynamic organization placed first in the AFC West in 2000, 2001 and 2002 despite playing among the toughest schedules in the NFL in each of those seasons. With their appearance in Super Bowl XXXVII, the Raiders became the first NFL team to have had a season end in the Super Bowl in four different decades.

The Raiders are the only team to have been in Super Bowls in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s and the 2000s. The Silver and Black are the only AFC team - and one of just two NFL teams - to have a season that advanced to the conference championship game in the '60s, the '70s, the '80s, the '90s and the 2000s.

The Raiders are one of only three original AFL teams to have captured three World Championships of Professional Football with Super Bowl victories. The Raiders are one of only five AFC teams to have won more than one Super Bowl since 1980. In their five Super Bowl appearances, the Raiders have been led by four head coaches and started four quarterbacks.

Since 1963, when Al Davis first took over the failing Oakland franchise that had struggled to win only nine of 42 league games in the initial three seasons of the new AFL and pledged to build the finest organization in sports, the Raiders have dominated professional football in terms of consistent victory. During the memorable 65 years in Oakland, Los Angeles and now Las Vegas, the Raiders have won 509 league games, tied 11 and lost 480. "Commitment to Excellence" has never been an idle phrase to those who have proudly represented the Raiders organization as shown by their domination of pro football.

Thirty of the great players who proudly wore the Silver and Black, as well as Owner-Leader Al Davis and legendary Head Coach John Madden, have been enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The Raiders have also produced six Coaches of the Year. In addition, 102 Pro Bowl players have earned 284 Pro Bowl selections representing the Silver and Black.

Another innovation came to professional football in 1970 - Monday Night Football. The Raiders' domination of this prime-time television series has seen the Silver and Black build a 43-33-1 record in Monday night play. The Raiders won 12 games at home to begin this series and are 21-10-0 at home in the 55 years of Monday Night Football.

Through the seven decades of pro football competition, the Raiders have had the greatest players, the greatest coaches, the greatest plays and participated in the greatest games in the annals of professional sports. Challengers to Raider domination of professional football will arise as they have in the '60s, '70s, '80s, '90s and the new millennium. The Raider organization will continue to meet these challenges.

In addition, the Raiders are proud to contribute to community engagement, youth initiatives, multicultural awareness, and global outreach. The Raiders played in Oakland from their inception through 1982, relocated to Los Angeles in 1983, moved back to Oakland in 1995, and made Las Vegas home in 2020.

The Raiders base training and business operations in Henderson, Nevada at Intermountain Health Performance Center and play home games at Allegiant Stadium, a fully enclosed, state-of-the-art facility located adjacent to the world-famous Las Vegas Strip. The Raiders maintain an international presence and communicate with the worldwide Raider Nation through the team's official website and social media channels.

3 takeaways from Raiders' loss: Play-calling falls flat on 'MNF'

By Vincent Bonsignore
November 17, 2025

The Raiders thought they could beat the Cowboys through the air Monday night, even if it meant abandoning the run.

They were wrong.

The Raiders, for the third time this season, failed to give their fans much to cheer for in prime time and were crushed 33-16 by Dallas on "Monday Night Football" at Allegiant Stadium.

Quarterback Dak Prescott completed 25 of 33 passes for 268 yards and four touchdowns in the victory. Wide receiver George Pickens, who was benched for the first series of the game along with teammate CeeDee Lamb, finished with nine catches for 144 yards and a touchdown.

The Cowboys (4-5-1), who were visiting Allegiant Stadium for a regular-season game for the first time, punted and lost a fumble on their first two drives. They then scored on their next five possessions and led 31-9 by the end of the third quarter.

The Raiders (2-8) thought they could throw the ball and keep pace even with left tackle Kolton Miller and right guard Jackson Powers-Johnson out with ankle injuries.

That plan backfired. Smith struggled with minimal protection, completing 27 of 42 passes for 238 yards and a touchdown. Smith was also sacked four times and threw his 13th interception, tied for the most in the NFL.

"I thought the plays were there," Smith said. "Guys were open. We just got to make more plays."

Here are three takeaways from the loss:

1. Offensive line struggles

The Raiders made some changes up front this week after Powers-Johnson joined Miller on injured reserve.

Center Jordan Meredith moved to right guard, while second-year offensive lineman Will Putnam started at center.

It didn't work.

The Cowboys dominated up front and harassed Smith all night. The Raiders surrendered three sacks and nine quarterback hits in the first half alone. The offensive line also failed to block for running back Ashton Jeanty on a fourth-quarter carry that resulted in a safety.

Dallas, which had 20 sacks its first nine games, finished Monday's game with four sacks and 11 quarterback hits.

Putnam started instead of rookie third-round pick Caleb Rogers, who was inactive. Rogers did not show enough in practice to play and coach Pete Carroll didn't want to just hand him an opportunity if it wasn't earned.

"We're trying to win games," Carroll said. "I don't know how to coach that way."

2. Jeanty gets lost in sauce

The Raiders went pass-heavy in the first half.

Smith had 28 passing attempts before halftime. Jeanty got two carries in the first half, while running back Raheem Mostert got one. The Raiders' only other rushing attempt came on a Smith scramble.

Their 8.8 percent run rate in the first half was the lowest for any team since 2021, according to the NFL's Next Gen Stats. The Raiders' four rushing attempts were their fewest in a first half in 17 seasons.

Carroll took responsibility for the approach.

"I really wanted to see us do that. And there's only one person to look at — me — because I influenced the game plan," he said.

The Raiders stuck to their plan even though they didn't trail by two scores until there was 5:16 remaining in the second quarter. They also weren't having success passing the ball. Smith completed only 16 of his 28 first-half passing attempts for 167 yards and an interception.

"We were supposed to be ahead with that approach, and then we're supposed to come back and run the football in the second half. … But our inability to get in the (end) zone and to stop them, it didn't work out that way," Carroll said.

The Raiders selected Jeanty with the No. 6 overall pick in April's draft because they believed he could be a dominant force. Giving him two carries and six targets in the passing game before halftime isn't enough.

3. Prescott dices up defense

The Cowboys' offense entered the week ranked fourth in the NFL in points and yards per game.

It showed why Monday.

Prescott kept dropping back and finding one of his two go-to receivers, Pickens and Lamb.

Pickens had six catches for 101 yards and a touchdown in the first half alone to help the Cowboys build a 24-9 lead. Lamb finished with five catches for 66 yards and a touchdown.

Prescott's four touchdown passes went to four different receivers. He could have thrown another, but he and Lamb couldn't connect on a fourth-and-1 pass from the Raiders' 4-yard line with 3:56 remaining.

Dallas also elected to kneel down when the Raiders turned it over on downs at their own 6-yard line with 2:31 to play.

Raiders report card: Only 1 unit avoids 'F' in embarrassing loss
By Adam Hill
November 17, 2025

How the Raiders performed in a 33-16 loss to the Cowboys on Monday at Allegiant Stadium:

Offense: F

The unit almost saved itself from a failing grade with some brief periods of success, but eventually earned its "F" on a safety and four-and-out in what should have been garbage time.

Quarterback Geno Smith was indecisive and inaccurate, which might have been the result of having such little time behind a makeshift offensive line that was overmatched.

Of course, there was another interception. That's 13 in 10 games.

The run game was essentially nonexistent, totaling 27 yards on 12 carries.

Defense: F

The Raiders forced a three-and-out on the first drive. To be fair, the Cowboys sat star wideouts CeeDee Lamb and George Pickens on the drive because of a "coach's decision," but at least the defense took advantage.

After that? Well, the Raiders mostly put 11 players on the field. But none of them bothered to cover Pickens.

The defense did get a fourth-down stop in the fourth quarter by leaving Lamb so wide open that the Cowboys almost tricked themselves into a quick, inaccurate throw and drop.

Special teams: B-

It was a decent debut for interim special teams coordinator Derius Swinton II.

Daniel Carlson made all of his kicks, including three field goals, in a week during which he was challenged with competition in the form of a practice squad signing.

He also bounced a tricky kick in the landing zone on the opening kickoff that gave the Cowboys some trouble and prevented them from getting good field position.

Punter AJ Cole was his typical spectacular self.

The Raiders did allow a long kick return early in the fourth quarter, and Tre Tucker misplayed a punt return that put the Raiders at their 2-yard line.

Coaching: F

Remember that thing about having 11 players lined up? That changed when the Raiders had too many defenders on the field for a play in which the Cowboys were lining up to take a knee.

That might be a first, and it tells the entire story.

It was an unacceptable performance in a prime-time game for an offense and defense that had extra time to prepare after a Thursday game.

The blame starts with the coaching staff.

The defense was mauled, and perhaps the worst part was how poorly it played on the first drive of the third quarter. After a disappointing first half, there was no spark coming out of halftime and few adjustments.

But the offensive plan might have been worse. Offensive coordinator Chip Kelly took the real issue of too many negative runs on first down, a trend that was circulating on social media, and overcorrected. The Raiders passed 42 times and ran 12.

Graney: Tom Brady might be the only person who can save the Raiders
By Ed Graney
November 17, 2025

The Raiders' latest loss was nearly over, and the Cowboys lined up to mercifully take a knee with 2½ minutes remaining. And a yellow flag came out.

The Raiders were called for having too many men on the field.

I wondered: Had minority owner Tom Brady stayed to watch or had he slinked out of Allegiant Stadium in shame?

It was before "Monday Night Football" kicked off — before the Cowboys and their home crowd enjoyed a 33-16 victory — when the Raiders tweeted a picture of Brady walking into the stadium.

He was wearing a Raiders jacket. He also wore a wry smile and some pretty jazzy spectacles.

Then he witnessed through those glasses yet another defeat, the eighth in 10 games for the Raiders this season.

Brady needs to be more involved because his isn't a role that can be done with one foot in the pool.

And perhaps all this losing will spur him to do just that because his fingerprints are also all over this debacle.

Yes. He was involved in building whatever you want to call the 2025 season. He's not void of responsibility.

But this team needs a louder voice. A clearer vision. Pete Carroll might have been hired as coach to lift the Raiders' floor, but they need someone now to lift the floor and ceiling.

And that someone should be Brady, or what's the point?

Must be all in

Problem: You can't do such a job, or at least do it well, on a part-time basis. Hey, it's not like anybody is trying to steal his millions of dollars from a TV gig, but it's not the same when you're learning things about an organization's daily habits second hand.

Phone calls and zoom meetings aren't as productive as being around personally. He needs to be fully committed because he might be the one who can fix a lot of the problems.

The man does not lack intelligence.

Heck, he's allowed in the building. It's not like he has to wait outside for an invitation. He's an owner of the team. He can be here as much as he wants.

This shouldn't just be an offseason job for him.

Brady made a push for former Lions offensive coordinator Ben Johnson as coach before he took the Bears job. Brady also met with Matthew Stafford when the Rams gave the quarterback permission to seek a trade.

Neither outcome came in favor of the Raiders, but they were the kind of moves Brady can at least try to orchestrate. Maybe one or two fall his way the next time.

He couldn't have been happy with what he saw Monday, yet another anemic performance by one of the NFL's worst offenses.

To that end, it has been debated whether offensive coordinator Chip Kelly was a Brady hire or one Carroll made himself.

Either way, things haven't worked on that side of the ball, either with Kelly calling plays or quarterback Geno Smith trying to execute them.

"Make plays when they need to be made," Smith said Monday. "That's really all it comes down to. It's a tough game. It's the NFL. There's great players all over the field."

The other teams just have more than the Raiders. Something else Brady surely knows.

It's fair to wonder how Brady might do should he make his voice more heard. Just because you can read defenses and throw touchdown passes and own a bunch of shiny rings doesn't make one a great owner.

But he's also the Raiders' best chance of somehow climbing out of what has become an annual funk. An annual existence of trying to win games when the focus should be on rebuilding.

Nothing new

Perhaps the embarrassment of this season will prompt Brady to do more. Be around more. Take charge more.

He needs to be more involved if there was (or is?) a disconnect between the coaching side and the personnel department.

It's obvious this hasn't worked for a long time. It hasn't just begun.

It might be the longest of shots. Brady might be fine with how things are when comparing his TV life to that as a minority owner. But his role as it stands isn't enough. He needs to be far more involved. He saw it again Monday.

If those jazzy spectacles actually work, he knows the reality. And no glasses are going to make this look pretty.

He needs to step up or the Raiders will continue to not get the best version of him. And then what's the point?

Raiders aren't winning games or developing rookies in Carroll's 1st season
By Vincent Bonsignore
November 17, 2025

The Raiders, with right guard Jackson Powers-Johnson on injured reserve, had a chance to get a look at rookie guard Caleb Rogers on Monday against the Cowboys.

In fact, they talked all week about that opportunity.

It never happened.

Rogers, a third-round pick out of Texas Tech, didn't even dress for the Raiders' 33-16 loss at Allegiant Stadium.

The team instead moved Jordan Meredith from center to right guard to replace Powers-Johnson. Will Putnam, a second-year lineman from Clemson, took Meredith's spot.

The Raiders also promoted Atonio Mafi from the practice squad to the active roster for Monday's game.

On the surface, making Rogers inactive felt like a missed opportunity.

The Raiders (2-8) aren't making the playoffs. So they could use the rest of the season to give young players like Rogers playing time and then gauge their development.

Instead, the team appears stuck between a rock and a hard place. Coach Pete Carroll wants to maximize every game and try to build a winning culture. But the Raiders also have a big picture to think about.

Carroll, 74, remains focused on the present for now.

"We're trying our best to win the games," Carroll said.

The problem is the Raiders aren't winning games or developing players.

Monday was their fifth loss by more than 10 points. They've now dropped four in a row for the second time this season.

Despite all that losing, Rogers and fellow rookie third-round pick Charles Grant can't get on the field. Rookie wide receiver Jack Bech received one target in Monday's loss, while fellow rookie wideout Dont'e Thornton Jr. got none. Rookie running back Ashton Jeanty, the No. 6 overall pick in April's draft, got six carries.

It's not that Carroll is holding them back on purpose. He just doesn't want to hand players opportunities until he feels they're ready. Until then, he will roll with the players he thinks can help the Raiders win each week.

"We would love to see Caleb play," Carroll said. "We would love to see Charles play. But it hasn't happened that way. They've got to show in practice and show us that they're ready."

Carroll is trying to find the right formula to get the Raiders out of their current rut. He's not trying to neglect the team's younger players. But they also have to show him they can step up if called upon.

"We're not ignoring it at all. We're paying attention to it," Carroll said. "But that's just part of the rigors of the season, in a particularly difficult season. The questions were warranted, and I have no problem with that. But I don't have answers for all of them."

Mistakes galore: Raiders nowhere close to competitive in loss to Cowboys

By Case Keefer
November 17, 2025

Pete Carroll has repeatedly defended the Raiders' slide to the bottom of the NFL by saying that in most of their losses, the team has been, "a play here or there," from a different outcome.

Make that about 60 or 70 plays away, at minimum, if the veteran coach wanted to accurately describe his team's performance against the Dallas Cowboys on Monday Night Football to cap NFL Week 11.

Dallas destroyed Las Vegas 33-16 at Allegiant Stadium, ceasing any hopeful feelings that had come out of the Raiders hanging around in narrow losses to the Jaguars and Broncos the last two weeks.

"This was a rough night, man," Carroll opened his postgame news conference. "We didn't get stuff done the way we wanted to on either side of the ball."

The game featured 118 plays from scrimmage, and the Cowboys were better than the Raiders for the mast majority of them. Despite spending the final 21 minutes of game time milking the clock with as high as a 22-point lead, Dallas outgained Las Vegas by a whopping 6.1 yards per play to 4.2 yards per play.

Dallas quarterback Dak Prescott threw touchdown passes on four straight possessions in the middle of the game to snap his team's own two-game losing streak.

They all went to different players as CeeDee Lamb, Jake Ferguson, George Pickens and Ryan Flournoy all found the end zone, in that order.

"I was a little disappointed we didn't stop them more," Carroll said.

Las Vegas didn't score a touchdown until the second minute of the fourth quarter when quarterback Geno Smith hit receiver Tre Tucker with a six-yard pass to cut its deficit to 31-16.

Las Vegas' defense responded by forcing a Dallas three-and-out, but Tucker then ruined all the goodwill he established by scoring his first touchdown in eight weeks.

He erroneously fielded a punt at the 5-yard line and then ran backwards for a two-yard loss.

A false start followed and, despite getting caved in by the interior of the Cowboys' defensive line all night, offensive coordinator Chip Kelly called a dive play for running back Ashton Jeanty.

Dallas defensive linemen Donovan Ezeiruaku and Sam Williams stuffed him for a safety that made it a three-score game with 11 minutes to play.

Jeanty had six carries for seven yards on the night.

“I took the accountability,” Carroll said of the Raiders’ run-pass split. “This is my football team. I had a chance to do something in this football game, and we went after it. Some of it was promising, some of it didn’t work out balance wise.”

The Raiders’ offensive line was outclassed playing without arguably their two best blockers, Kolton Miller and Jackson Powers-Johnson, because of injuries.

After spending the season hastily rejecting any suggestion of switching Powers-Johnson and Meredith at guard and center, respectively, Carroll chose to move the latter against the Cowboys.

Meredith started at Powers-Johnson’s guard spot for the first time this season while 2024 undrafted free agent Will Putnam made his first career start at center.

The new combination struggled in more than the run game, also giving up four sacks and 11 quarterback hits.

“They were up against a really good front,” Smith said of his line. “They’ve got great guys on that side of the ball especially in the interior. I think they did a great job competing and giving me the most time they could. A couple plays broke down but for the most part I was able to set my feet and get the ball off. That’s all you can ask."

Smith managed 238 passing yards by completing 27 of 42 attempts. He also regained his top spot in the league in interceptions by committing his 13th of the year late in the second quarter.

Smith threw into heavy traffic on a pass intended for Michael Mayer with linebacker Kenneth Murray tipping the ball and safety Markquese Bell catching the deflection.

“There’s been a bunch of tipped passes that have ended up in the wrong hands but that’s just how football works sometimes,” Smith said. “I don’t think that one play was the difference in the game. I think there were a lot more plays we could have made to give us a better shot.”

A few faint boos were audible, but Raiders’ fans were hardly heard for the rest of the night after the turnover.

Allegiant Stadium had a roaring atmosphere early as the crowd split between Cowboys’ and Raiders’ fans took their turns cheering on their teams.

Las Vegas gave the home fans an early boost when superstar edge rusher Maxx Crosby strip-sacked Prescott on Dallas’ second possession with rookie defensive tackle Tonka Hemingway recovering the fumble at the 15-yard line.

But the Raiders’ offense went backwards, losing two yards after Smith took an immediate sack, and settled for a 35-yard field goal from Daniel Carlson.

“If something doesn’t look right out there, blame it on me,” Smith said. “If it doesn’t look right, blame it on me. That’s all you can do — blame it on me. If your kids mess up at school, blame it on me. If your car breaks down on the way to work, blame it on me.”

After costly misses in the last two games — an extra point against Jacksonville and a potential game-tying field goal in Denver — Carlson converted every attempt against Dallas.

It just didn't make much of a difference, as the Raiders fell to 2-8 with a game hosting the fellow 2-8 Cleveland Browns up next and scheduled for 1:05 p.m. on Sunday.

"At the end of the day, it's got to be everybody," Crosby said. "We have a really close team. It's just not showing in the results right now. That's the hardest fight but you've got to keep fighting. I've gone through way worse in my life. I know other guys have gone through a lot of adversity in this locker room. You can feel bad for yourself, or you can get back up, go back to work and find ways to get better."

The final score against Cowboys wound up flattering to the Raiders.

Lamb was wide open for another touchdown at the 1-yard line on a fourth-and-1 play with four minutes remaining but dropped a pass from Prescott.

The Raiders then turned the ball over on downs but Cowboys coach Brian Schottenheimer appeared to have no interest in running the score up on Carroll, whom he worked under from 2018-2020 as an assistant with the Seattle Seahawks.

He opted to kneel all four downs at the goal line with 2:30 remaining even though it didn't allow the Cowboys to fully run out the clock.

"I like the way that our defense, being out there just speaking from a personal vantage point, the guys weren't quitting at the end even though they had an opportunity there to score," Crosby said of the possession that ended with Lamb's drop. "We went back out and got another stop."

Crosby and Smith both mentioned having no excuses for the Raiders' fifth double-digit loss of the season (as opposed to three by a touchdown or less).

Carroll didn't have many either. His usual qualifier wasn't available as a defense.

One or two plays wasn't going to change the outcome against the Cowboys. Dallas (now 4-5-1) came in with a losing record but dismantled a Las Vegas team that the coaching staff felt was inching towards to breaking through.

"Very difficult night for us," Carroll said. "Sorry about it. I feel bad."

Cowboys-Raiders takeaways: Dak Prescott throws 4 TD passes in MNF win at Las Vegas

By Jon Machota, Saad Yousuf and Amos Morale III
November 17, 2025

Dak Prescott threw four touchdown passes and receiver George Pickens had a career night Monday as the Dallas Cowboys beat the Las Vegas Raiders 33-16 at Allegiant Stadium.

The Dallas offense got rolling in the second quarter when Prescott connected with receiver CeeDee Lamb for an 18-yard score. Prescott later hit Jake Ferguson for a 5-yard touchdown pass and ended the run with a 37-yard pass to Pickens.

Pickens, who, along with Lamb, was benched during Dallas' first offensive drive for disciplinary reasons, matched a career high with nine receptions, and his 144 yards receiving were his third most in a game.

Dallas picked up its fourth win of the season, and Las Vegas fell to 2-8.

The Cowboys paid tribute to Marshawn Kneeland ahead of their "Monday Night Football" game in Las Vegas.

Players and staff wore shirts bearing Kneeland's photo, and the team also prepared a locker where his No. 94 jersey was displayed in his honor. The defensive end died Nov. 6 at age 24 of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Quite the rebound

Playing Las Vegas is exactly what Dallas' offense needed. That side of the ball hasn't looked great in its last two games. Maybe a bad opponent will get it back on track. Prescott was playing at an elite level the first seven weeks. He came back down to earth the previous two before the bye week. He was excellent again Monday night in his 13th career game with at least four touchdown passes, a franchise record. He also moved past Tony Romo as the franchise leader with 41 games with at least three passing touchdowns. — Jon Machota, Cowboys beat writer

Dallas run defense blows up

The Raiders wanted no part of trying to run against Dallas' front. It'll be interesting to see how opponents game plan now that the Cowboys have Quinnen Williams in the middle. Dallas has been trying to fix its run defense for a while. Could the Cowboys finally have an answer with their strongest defensive tackle group in over 15 years? — Machota

Interesting strategy

It was a curious offensive strategy for the Raiders, specifically in the first half. Despite having first-round pick Ashton Jeanty in the backfield and going up against a shoddy, albeit revamped, Cowboys run defense, the Raiders didn't even try to run the ball. Instead, quarterback Geno Smith threw the ball 28 times behind an offensive line that struggled to give him the time he needed.

The Raiders don't generate enough opportunities on offense to where they can afford squandering gifts, which is exactly what they did early on. After they were set up on a short field by a Prescott fumble, Smith and Tre Tucker failed to connect in the end zone, and the Raiders had to settle for a field goal. Once the Cowboys' offense started clicking, with Pickens and Lamb fully incorporated, the Raiders found themselves in a track meet they are not built to compete in. — Saad Yousuf, NFL news writer

Cowboys key on Crosby

Outside of Maxx Crosby, the Raiders offered little resistance to Dallas' offense. Prescott has played at an MVP level for most of the season, and he's at his best when he's afforded the time to be comfortable in the pocket and distribute the ball evenly among his many talented targets. It took the Cowboys a little time early in the game to adjust to Crosby, but once they did, they were chipping him and getting creative with how to slow the Raiders' best defender. On Pickens' touchdown, Dallas had Jake Ferguson block Crosby on the edge and brought the left guard from inside on the opposite end to help slow Crosby on the right side. That play was an example of what was the case for the Cowboys all day, which was to focus on Crosby and feast on the rest of the defense. — Yousuf

Dak Prescott, George Pickens star in Cowboys' win over Raiders
By Todd Archer and Ryan McFadden
November 17, 2025

LAS VEGAS -- The Dallas Cowboys promised to honor the memory of late teammate Marshawn Kneeland with how hard they played Monday night. They did so with a convincing 33-16 win against the Las Vegas Raiders.

Dak Prescott threw four touchdown passes to four different pass catchers -- George Pickens, CeeDee Lamb, Jake Ferguson and Ryan Flournoy - and a defense that incorporated newcomers Quinnen Williams and Logan Wilson and welcomed the return of DeMarvion Overshown did not allow a touchdown until the fourth quarter.

By that time, the offense had scored on five straight possessions to build a 31-9 lead.

Kneeland was not far from the Cowboys' minds. The team wore a blue decal with a No. 94 on their helmets. In pregame warmups, they wore T-shirts featuring his likeness. During the game, Kneeland's jersey was hung behind the Cowboys' bench.

One win does not erase the pain of losing a teammate, but for one night, the Cowboys could smile again.

Here's what to know from "Monday Night Football" for both teams:

Dallas Cowboys (4-5-1)

What to make of the QB performance: Prescott continues to climb to the top of the Cowboys' record book. Already the team leader in completions and completion percentage, he now has the most games with at least three touchdown passes in franchise history. His 37-yard pass to Pickens in the second quarter was his third Monday, giving him 41 such games for his career. Tony Romo had 40, and Danny White is third with 20. Since Prescott entered the league in 2016, only the Chiefs' Patrick Mahomes (46) has more three-TD games. Prescott is inching closer to Romo in career touchdown passes as well. He has 234 to Romo's 247.

Trend to watch: Williams had one sack in his first eight games of the season with the New York Jets, back in Week 1. He ended his career-long streak of games without a sack (seven) in the first half of his first game with the Cowboys. Actually, in the first four series, he had 1.5 sacks, four quarterback hits and a tackle for loss. He added a fifth QB hit on the final drive of the half. This was Williams' first game since Oct. 26 because he was coming off the bye with the Jets at the trade deadline and the Cowboys had their bye after acquiring him. The Cowboys hope more comfort within their scheme will lead to more sacks, hits and QB pressures.

Stat to know: Lamb and Pickens did not start the game because of a coach's decision. But they effectively finished the Raiders. In the first half, they combined for nine catches, 156 yards and two touchdowns. It was their second-most combined yards in a first half this season (182 vs. Washington in Week 7). Pickens had 101 yards and a 37-yard score. It was his third game with 100 yards and a touchdown this season. He had four such games in his first three seasons in Pittsburgh. Lamb had an 18-yard touchdown and 55 yards in the first half and also drew a flag for pass interference. -- Todd Archer

Next game: vs. Philadelphia Eagles (4:25 p.m. ET, Nov. 23)

Las Vegas Raiders (2-8)

With the Raiders down two starters on their offensive line because of ankle injuries (left tackle Kolton Miller and right guard Jackson Powers-Johnson), they were at a major disadvantage in the trenches, and it showed throughout the night.

The group of backup left tackle Stone Forsythe, left guard Dylan Parham, backup center Will Putnam, right guard Jordan Meredith and right tackle DJ Glaze barely gave quarterback Geno Smith any time to work within the pocket. The 35-year-old signal-caller was sacked four times by Dallas.

Smith was under pressure on 41% of his drop-backs in the first half, and he went 3-of-9 for 23 yards. The Raiders' offensive line struggles also made it hard for them to establish their run game. Las Vegas finished the game with 27 rushing yards on 12 attempts.

The offensive line's performance should raise concern ahead of Las Vegas' matchup against the Cleveland Browns in Week 12. Browns edge rusher Myles Garrett has been one of the best defensive players in the league, totaling 15 sacks, including four in Cleveland's loss to the Baltimore Ravens on Sunday.

Most surprising performance: Rookie running back Ashton Jeanty was hardly used in the run game. Jeanty had two carries for 10 yards in the first half. He had an 11-yard carry at the 13:29 mark of the second quarter and didn't receive a handoff for the rest of the quarter. Entering the game, the Cowboys' defense ranked 27th in yards per carry (4.8).

Stat to know: In the first half, the Raiders used play-action on 40.6% of Smith's drop-backs. Smith was 7-of-12 for 124 yards and an interception on such throws. Las Vegas entered Week 11 using play-action on just 26.6% of Smith's dropbacks.

Trend to watch: The Raiders started Kyu Blu Kelly at cornerback after he had two interceptions last week against Denver. But against Dallas, he was outmatched. Kelly gave up six catches for 87 yards and a touchdown on six targets in 27 coverage snaps. Kelly has struggled, and with the team sitting at 2-8, it will be interesting to see whether the Raiders move to rookie third-rounder Darien Porter for the rest of the season. -- Ryan McFadden

Next game: vs. Cleveland Browns (4:05 p.m. ET, Nov. 23)

Cowboys honor Kneeland, then get 4 TD passes from Prescott in 33-16 win over Raiders

By Mark Anderson
November 17, 2025

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The Cowboys spent 11 days mourning defensive end Marshawn Kneeland before taking the field Monday night.

Dallas then paid tribute to Kneeland by dominating the spiraling Raiders for 60 minutes.

Dak Prescott passed for 268 yards and four touchdowns in a 33-16 victory over Las Vegas, the Cowboys' first game since Kneeland's death.

The 24-year-old Kneeland was found dead on Nov. 6 of an apparent suicide. Coach Brian Schottenheimer and Cowboys players wore shirts honoring Kneeland, and they bowed their heads during a moment of silence before the game.

The Cowboys (4-5-1) played one of their best games of the season to keep alive their slim playoff hopes. Dallas had lost three of four and has games coming up against Philadelphia, Kansas City and Detroit.

"They wanted to honor him, and we're not done honoring him," Schottenheimer said. "He's a part of our family forever. But it's been tough, man. I mean, these past 11 days have been really tough. I'm proud of those guys because just the way they played today, they played with Marshawn's play style.

"I'd be lying if I said I didn't have some tears when I first put the shirt on, as you can imagine. But more than anything, I know Marshawn was looking down on us, and we wanted to make him proud, and I think we did that."

Owner Jerry Jones credited Schottenheimer's leadership through a dark time.

"In a way, a competition like this with the Raiders is good therapy to come back and get in it," Jones said. "They know how much that Marshawn loved to compete, how much he loved the Cowboys. And to me, it's just a way of saying, 'This one's for you Marshawn.'"

Las Vegas (2-8) continued its downward slide under first-year coach Pete Carroll. The Raiders have lost four straight and eight of nine.

Prescott was precise — minus a miss of a wide-open CeeDee Lamb for an easy touchdown — completing 25 of 44 passes to snap his four-game winless streak (0-3-1) in prime-time games. His four TD passes tied a season high, matching his total from Oct. 5 against the New York Jets.

He threw primarily to George Pickens and Lamb. Pickens (nine catches, 144 yards, one touchdown) and Lamb (five receptions for 66 yards and a TD) produced big numbers despite Schottenheimer benching them for the Cowboys' first drive.

Javonte Williams provided the Cowboys with balance by rushing for 93 yards on 22 carries.

The Raiders had little balance, going with 32 called pass plays and three runs — Geno Smith also scrambled for 7 yards — in the first half alone. They became only the third team since at least 1991 with 30 or more dropbacks and four or few runs in a first half. The four rushes were also the Raiders' second fewest in a first half since at least that year; they had three runs against Atlanta in a 2008 game.

"It was a bunch of play-action passes, and I really wanted to see us do that," Carroll said. "There's only one person to look at. It's me because I was influencing the game plan. ... (Offensive coordinator) Chip (Kelly) and I knew what was going on, but we were trying to stay with it to see if we could continue to get the big plays, which we were getting. Then we just stalled in the red zone.

"I don't really care about pleasing people with our run-pass mix. I'm trying to move the football."

Las Vegas finished with 12 rushes, tied for the 12th fewest in franchise history. Ashton Jeanty, taken with the sixth pick in this year's draft to boost what was the NFL's worst rushing game, rushed just six times for 7 yards, and was stopped in the end zone for a safety in the fourth quarter. He had two carries in the first half, gaining 10 yards.

"That's up to the guys upstairs, so just take whatever I get," Jeanty said of the play-calling.

The air-it-out approach didn't work, with Smith finishing 27 of 42 for 238 yards with a touchdown and an interception.

The Cowboys' defense made sure Smith had few chances to execute the offense, sacking him four times, including 1 1/2 by recent trade acquisition Quinnen Williams. Dallas sent the Jets a 2027 first-round draft pick, a 2026 second-rounder and defensive tackle Mazi Smith for Williams.

Game Recap: Raiders shine early, fade fast in primetime loss to Dallas Cowboys
By Levi Edwards
November 17, 2025

It feels like we've seen this movie before.

As the lights shone bright in front of the national audience, the Raiders came out hot and showed glimpses of what they could be as a team.

And then fatigue set in, momentum dwindled down and a lack of energy became visible.

The Silver and Black fell to 2-8 after losing to the Dallas Cowboys, 33-16. In a contest that was competitive in the first quarter, Dallas ultimately captured the lead, and the momentum, and never looked back.

The Raiders defense was lights out to start the game, forcing a three-and-out on the first drive that ended with a near interception by Eric Stokes.

With a 43-yard punt from AJ Cole that pinned the Cowboys at their own 4-yard line, the defense continued to do damage. Maxx Crosby got home on Dak Prescott, lurking around the edge for a strip sack. Rookie Tonka Hemingway secured the fumble recovery which put the Raiders in the red zone.

However, for a Raiders offense that had the fifth-lowest red-zone percentage (47.8) heading into Monday Night Football, they couldn't capitalize with a touchdown. Following an incomplete pass to Tre Tucker on third-and-12, they settled for a 35-yard field goal from Daniel Carlson to take a 3-0 lead.

The Cowboys offense picked up the pace, putting Brandon Aubrey in place to knock through a 50-yard field goal to tie the game. Despite another successful drive for the Raiders offense, with Geno Smith going 4-of-5 for 52 yards, Cowboys edge rusher James Houston came away with a sack on third down to force Carlson to kick another field goal.

"I thought we moved the ball up and down the field," Smith said. "I thought we started out pretty good. … The only thing that I can say, obviously I haven't watched the film yet, but you've got to convert in the red zone. I don't know what our third down percentages were but I felt like we could've done better on third downs as well, keeping drives alive."

And that's when Prescott got things rolling with his two top receivers.

By the end of the first half, George Pickens and CeeDee Lamb combined for nine receptions and 156 receiving yards. The Cowboys quarterback found Lamb wide open for a 18-yard touchdown pass to give them their first lead of the game.

The Cowboys extended the lead, choosing to go for it on fourth down in the red zone. Prescott found tight end Jake Ferguson open for five-yard touchdown pass, making it a 17-6 ballgame.

An all too familiar occurrence happened as the Raiders tried marching down the field to make it a one-possession game. Smith scanned downfield on a play action, throwing it to his All-Pro tight end Brock Bowers, who already had three catches for 51 yards up to that point in the game.

The pass was tipped up by linebacker Kenneth Murray, and Markquese Bell caught the ball as it floated in the air. Their offense responded with Pickens zig0zagging through the Raiders secondary for a 37-yard catch and run to the end zone.

Carlson made a 38-yard field goal before the end of the half to make it 24-9.

"I was really disappointed that we didn't stop them more," Pete Carroll said postgame. "There was a space in that game, three or four drives in a row, and we couldn't get off the field."

The Cowboys offense continued to ride the wave from the first half, churning out a 12-play, 80-yard drive to the end zone that was capped off with Prescott hitting Ryan Flournoy for the QB's fourth touchdown pass of the night.

The Raiders offense responded with their first touchdown of the night, albeit not coming until the beginning of the fourth quarter. Smith dinked and doinked on short gains down the field, with Tre Tucker, Michael Mayer and Bowers being the main beneficiaries.

A six-yard screen pass to Tucker landed the Raiders in the end zone for the receiver's fifth touchdown on the season.

If the Raiders had any shot of mounting a comeback, it would've been after forcing a three-and-out with a little under 12 minutes left in regulation. However, Tucker was tackled at the two-yard line on the punt return, resulting in Ashton Jeanty being tackled inside his own end zone for a safety.

This was the fifth time this season the Raiders defense allowed over 30 points. While the Cowboys offense was held to 4-of-10 on third down, Prescott finished with 268 yards, four touchdowns and a 138.6 passer rating.

"We're not good enough right now," Maxx Crosby blatantly stated after the loss. "There's a lot of issues and we got to find ways to get better. Find solutions instead of just doing the same thing expecting a different result. We've got to find ways to get better and it takes everybody."

The offense continued to struggle Monday night. They failed to get the run going with their first-round pick, as Jeanty finished with six carries for seven rushing yards. Smith was the team's leading rusher, with 14 yards on the ground.

"There's only one person to look at, it's me, because I was influencing the game plan," Carroll said of the offensive scheme. "I loved the way we were chunking them and we made big plays. I knew what was happening. Chip and I knew what was going on."

"I don't really care about pleasing people with our run-pass mix," Carroll added. "I'm trying to move the football."

Smith, lined up behind Will Putnam making his first career start at center, went 27-of-42 for 238 yards and was sacked four times.

While Bowers was the bright spot of the unit with seven catches for 72 yards, the Raiders offense went 3-of-12 on third down and failed to reach 250 offensive yards for a fifth time this season.

And even Bowers admitted his second season feels like a cruel sequel to his rookie year, as the team holds the same record now as they did through 10 games into the 2024 season.

"It's definitely tough going through back to back years of kind of – not the same thing, but similar records," Bowers said. "I don't know. Just got to keep your head down, keep working and keep trying to get better."

Monday Night Football: Cowboys rout Raiders 33-16

By Charean Williams
November 17, 2025

The Cowboys had a lot to play for on Monday Night.

They were playing their first game since Marshawn Kneeland's death during the bye week; they were playing for the first time this season with DeMarvion Overshown, Quinnen Williams, Shavon Revel and Logan Wilson on the defense; and they were playing for their playoff lives.

It was just the Raiders, of course, but the Cowboys played arguably their best game of the season in rolling Las Vegas 33-16.

Dak Prescott threw four touchdown passes; Williams 1.5 sacks and five quarterback hits; and the Cowboys kept alive whatever slim playoff chance they have. They improved to 4-5-1, while the Raiders fell to 2-8.

The Cowboys outgained the Raiders 381 to 236 as Prescott went 25-of-33 for 268 yards.

CeeDee Lamb and George Pickens did not start for disciplinary reasons, but they made their presence felt after the first drive. Pickens caught nine passes for 144 yards and a touchdown, and Lamb caught five for 66 yards and a touchdown. Jake Ferguson and Ryan Flournoy also had a touchdown reception.

Javonte Williams ran for 93 yards on 22 carries.

The Raiders had six drives that crossed midfield, but they went 1-for-3 in the red zone.

Geno Smith was 27-of-42 for 238 yards with a touchdown and an interception. He led the team in rushing with 14 yards on four carries as the Raiders rushed for only 27 yards and had Ashton Jeanty tackled in the end zone by Donovan Ezeiruaku for a safety. Brock Bowers caught seven passes for 72 yards.

Now, it gets real for the Cowboys as they face the Eagles, Chiefs, Lions, Vikings, Chargers, Commanders and Giants likely needing to go 5-2 (and likely 6-1) to even have a chance for the postseason.

Cowboys-Raiders on 'Monday Night Football': What We Learned from Dallas' 33-16 win
By Nick Shook
November 17, 2025

Dallas Cowboys – 33, Las Vegas Raiders – 16

1. Dak is back. Although the Cowboys have struggled as a team, Dak Prescott was compiling a legitimate case for NFL MVP by mid-October. That's precisely when the wheels fell off, leading to two ugly showings that not only torpedoed his hopes of winning the award but also directly contributed to the Cowboys' two most recent losses. Prescott got back on the right side of the ledger in a big way Monday night, dicing up Las Vegas' beleaguered defense with a healthy dose of targets for George Pickens and CeeDee Lamb, powering a Cowboys aerial attack that appeared unstoppable for most of Monday night. Such a performance only counts for one win but was desperately needed for a Cowboys team that has relied heavily on its offense to remain competitive.

2. Same trench issues plague Raiders. Las Vegas lost Jackson Powers-Johnson to injury during the Raiders' Thursday night loss in Denver during Week 10, prompting the Raiders to slide starting center Jordan Meredith out to guard and replacing Meredith with undrafted Clemson product Will Putnam on Monday night. The changes came from a place of necessity and predictably didn't produce encouraging results from a team that already had problems up front. Dallas' defense -- a unit that has endured plenty of its own struggles in 2025 -- harassed Geno Smith often Monday night, sacking him three times in the first half. Rookie first-rounder Ashton Jeanty had absolutely nowhere to run, wiping out any ambition of establishing the ground game and forcing Smith to lean on checkdowns to Jeanty just to get him the ball. Their struggles hit rock bottom in the fourth quarter when Jeanty was hit behind the line of scrimmage (again) in the end zone for a safety, perfectly capturing how the Raiders' deficiencies up front have kneecapped this entire offense.

3. Lamb, Pickens prove their value. The Cowboys' star receiving duo of CeeDee Lamb and George Pickens spent the first series of Monday night on the sideline due to what was reported to be a coach's decision. With both sidelined, Dallas went three-and-out on its first series and Prescott fumbled away possession to end the Cowboys' second drive. From that point on, Lamb and Pickens reclaimed their essential roles and the Cowboys' offense took flight, scoring on each of their next five possessions, including four straight touchdown drives. Pickens shredded the Raiders' defense before and after the catch, finishing with nine catches for 144 yards and a touchdown, including 77 yards after the catch. Lamb accounted for Dallas' first touchdown, a walk-in-the-park reception in the end zone and chipped in four catches for 61 yards on the night. When the Cowboys' offense is at its best, it looks like it did on Monday night, with Prescott lighting up opposing defenses with his arm and doing so by relying heavily on Pickens and Lamb.

4. Raiders' defense bottoms out. Yes, Las Vegas has lost by larger margins this season but the Raiders' lack of effort and fundamental consistency was a glaring issue in Monday night's defeat. The Raiders had no answer for the Cowboys' offense for most of the night and even when they appeared to be in position to limit Dallas' gains, poor tackling technique and the absence of a desire to finish plays were far too prevalent for an NFL defense. The combination was most apparent on Pickens' 37-yard catch and sprint through Las Vegas' coverage unit for a touchdown, in which two Raiders' feeble reaches toward

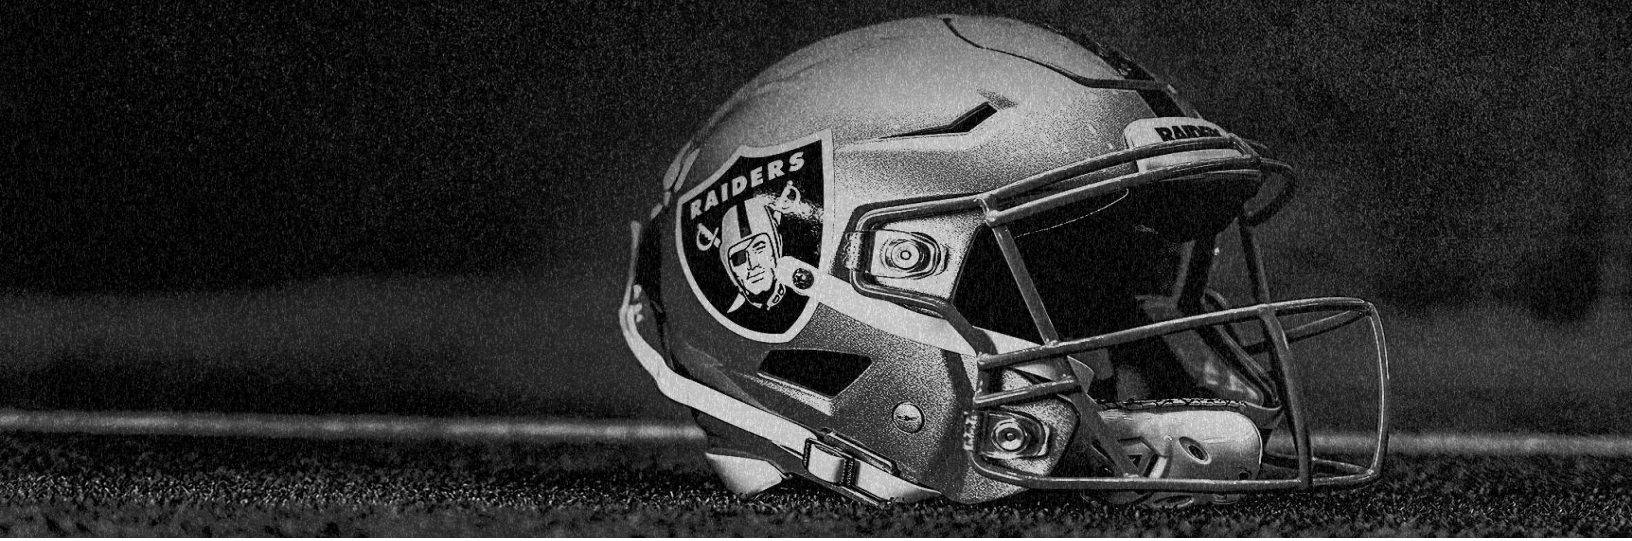

Pickens looked exponentially worse in a slow-motion replay, but typified much of this ugly season, one that seems increasingly directionless with each passing week.

5. Bland delivers much-needed bounce-back performance. Mere months after signing a four-year, $90 million extension, DaRon Bland got torched by Marvin Harrison Jr. in front of a prime-time audience in Week 9. Nobody on that side of the ball needed to have a good night more than Bland, who delivered emphatically Monday night. Bland led Dallas in tackles (10), broke up two passes and looked much more like the cornerback the Cowboys were happy to reward than the bogged down version the nation witnessed in Arlington two weeks ago. The Cowboys' 16 points surrendered Monday night shouldn't definitively suggest they've solved their defensive issues because they were facing a team with one of the lowest offensive ceilings in the NFL. However, it's still a positive sign that Bland played well after such a rough outing.

Next Gen Stats Insight for Cowboys-Raiders (via NFL Pro): Playing his first game with the Cowboys, Quinnen Williams had a season-high five QB pressures on 28 pass rushes (17.9%) and earned 1.5 sacks.

NFL Research: With four passing touchdowns Monday night, Dak Prescott now has 41 career games with three or more passing touchdowns, breaking Tony Romo's franchise record for the most such games in Cowboys history.

HEAD COACH PETE CARROLL

THE ATHLETIC

Why Pete Carroll returned to the NFL with the Raiders: 'That pursuit of the passion'
By Vic Tafur
January 29, 2025

At one point during Monday's introductory news conference, new Las Vegas Raiders general manager John Spytek looked to his left at Pete Carroll.

"He's crushing this press conference," Spytek said, smiling.

Carroll's reputation precedes him, and everyone figured the new Raiders coach was going to bring energy and enthusiasm along with know-how from winning championships with USC and the Seattle Seahawks.

But Carroll cranked up the dial on Monday.

"He's got people excited," Spytek said. "I've just been a fan for so long, and to get a chance to sit up here alongside him today and now work alongside him is an honor. I'm just fired up."

Carroll, 73, is still a kid at heart and is excited about returning to coaching after a year off. Heck, he is giddy about just returning to the practice field and grabbing a football.

"To me, it's always been about playing catch," Carroll said. "I've loved the game since I was a little kid. If I get a chance to go out and throw the ball around, I'm doing it. That's what I'll do first time out on the practice field as we get going."

Carroll will lay out a vision and a plan for players built on years of experience — and success. He is the Raiders' third head coach in three years, but Josh McDaniels never won in his two stints as a head coach and Antonio Pierce would say himself that he was learning on the job. Both men had a lot of confidence but no proven track record as a head coach like Carroll does.

Carroll has a formula that has worked — former players like Russell Wilson and Bobby Wagner have called him a "culture builder" — and it starts with competition and having fun.

And that frenetic fervor of his.

"His energy was amazing," owner Mark Davis said of the job interview with Carroll.

He is an original, a San Francisco 49ers fan growing up as a kid in Marin County who "was captured" by the Raiders when they arrived in 1960. And he has a unique coaching style as well.

"I don't do stuff like everybody else," Carroll said. "Really that's not my goal; to try to match up how other people have run this thing. … You're either competing or you're not, and I'm always competing. That's how we'll get it done in every way possible."

And trying to win as soon as possible should be an enjoyable grind. It's something that Carroll told Raiders players who were on hand Monday, like Maxx Crosby and Kolton Miller.

"To me, this game should be fun," Carroll said. "If we're not having fun, I'm screwing it up, and we're going to have fun in this room right here with our team."

Carroll and Spytek are putting together a coaching staff and then will turn their attention to the roster. Carroll, who said he and Spytek will split the decision-making, knows what kind of players he is looking for.

"(In) Seattle, we went through a lot of transitions and transactions, and it was to find the right people," Carroll said. "John and I are in total concert of the kinds of people that we're going to build this program around. There's a way to get to that, and we've been through this, and it's really exciting to have the opportunity to do it again."

Carroll didn't eschew retirement just to chase another Super Bowl title — he is back because of how much he enjoys trying to compete for one.

"Why would I want to do it again? It's because it's that chase and that pursuit of the passion that we want to find," Carroll said.

When Carroll was fired by the New England Patriots as coach in 2000, he took a year off and honed his philosophy and reminded himself why he coaches. He just did that again last year when the Seahawks moved on from him, in between watching his grandsons play high school football and his sons coach in college and the NFL.

"It's never been about accomplishments," Carroll said. "It's never been about that. It is about the game and loving it and playing. I really have realized, again, in this year, when you get a year to take a step away from it, it's incredibly valuable.

"It hasn't been about trying to win the championship games so that I can put that banner or that ring in my drawer. It's not about that. It's about competing. It's about being the best you can possibly be with what you have to work with. … It's building the mentality that everybody that comes to our program has a unique quality that makes them them, and giving everybody the chance to be as good as they can possibly be."

Players will buy in. Not just current Raiders, but free agents. So says Richard Sherman, one of Carroll's biggest stars back on the Seahawks.

"He gives the Raiders stability and legitimacy," Sherman said on his podcast. "They have a huge budget for free agents and when you bring Pete Carroll in, players want to come play for him. Players understand, players know him, players' parents know him. I think guys will look at that as more of a destination."

Carroll and Spytek have hit the ground running, and Spytek feels like a young player getting a taste of what Carroll's uptempo practices feel like.

“Well, I can’t wait to see what ‘compete for Pete’ looks like every day,” he said. “I think I’ve got a pretty good feel for it so far. But just the energy and the passion that he presents with every day … it feels like we were talking (for) 10 days, but I think it’s only been three since we first started talking.”

Remember, Spytek was a big admirer of Carroll’s USC teams two decades ago.

“Just the way he leads a program,” Spytek said. “Everywhere he’s been, he’s won. I go back, I can remember vividly watching those USC teams. They were some of the most fun football teams I’ve ever watched, and I think I admired him a lot because yes, they were full of talent, and our job is to find a lot of talent here, but they were full of competitors and guys that love football.”

Carroll knows it all starts and ends with the players.

“The culture is the players, and you’ll see that, but we’ll show them the way. It all starts with competition,” he said. “You’re either competing or you’re not. … If there’s one thing that I want them to understand — and I’ll start the message right now — if you want to be on a great team, you need to be a great teammate.”

Work hard, push yourself and your teammates, have a little fun and get better.

“If you don’t want to compete, you’re in the wrong place,” Carroll said.

Pete Carroll, Raiders beefing up investment in (and reliance on) football analytics
By Tashan Reed
June 2, 2025

There's no denying Pete Carroll's 14-year tenure with the Seattle Seahawks was wildly successful. But like any head coach, he had his faults that drew the ire of the fan base. One of his most criticized traits was his tendency to play conservatively.

In the modern era, as analytics have become a bigger part of teams' decision-making processes, they've gotten more pass-happy and aggressive in their fourth-down decision-making. The Seahawks, however, often lagged behind. That began to change late in Carroll's time there, but Seattle's investment in analytics — and Carroll's openness to incorporating them — remained measured compared to other teams.

Carroll was fired following the 2023 season, and he spent 2024 out of coaching. And while his status as the oldest coach in NFL history (74) might suggest he'd be set in his ways, he changed his tune on analytics after he was hired as the Las Vegas Raiders' coach earlier this offseason.

"There's patterns to the game that I (began to see) differently," Carroll said in February. "A lot of it was the analytic outlook of it. When you're in the midst of all of these seasons and every week, as you're just so frantically going about planning for the next game, you don't get the chance to have that perspective and slow your mind down."

The Raiders' personnel moves this offseason have shown that wasn't just coachspeak from Carroll. They retained staffers who worked with analytics, including VP of football research and development David Christoff, director of football systems Brad Goldsberry and coordinator of player personnel research and strategy Walt King, and made several additions.

In February, the Raiders hired senior vice president of football operations Mark Thewes to help lead their analytics efforts. Thewes previously oversaw the Denver Broncos' analytics department. Since bringing on Thewes, the Raiders have hired head coach research specialist Ryan Paganetti, senior manager of football strategy Kunal Singh and manager of football data science and engineering Andrew Fedele.

The revamped ownership group, which has expanded beyond controlling owner Mark Davis to include minority owner Tom Brady and others, has invested the necessary resources to enhance the staffing and technology required to run a functional analytics department. General manager John Spytek already frequently used analytics in his previous role as assistant GM of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, but this level of investment is new for Carroll.

"He's totally receptive," Thewes said last month when asked about Carroll's willingness to integrate analytics. "He challenges us to come up with new ways to challenge his ways of thinking. … We're trying to organize the data in a way that is supportive to the decision-making process."

Carroll intends to lean on those resources to blend his old-school principles with a new-school approach.

"I'm really excited to convey those things that we take a look at differently than I have before," Carroll said. "So, I have a really strong philosophy about how we do things and why we do what we do, but yet, if you're competing, then you have to be dynamic enough to continue to grow and expand."

As part of the 2011 NFL collective bargaining agreement, players agreed to allow the league to track their on-field locations and health metrics. That opened the door for the creation of Next Gen Stats, a collection of data gathered by the NFL to create advanced statistics. By 2017, every team had NGS data collection. It was around then that NFL teams began to invest more in analytics to find ways to use the data to their benefit.

For the coaching staff, analytics are typically used to formulate a plan for fourth-down decision-making, identify ideal run-pass splits and predict an opposing team's tendencies based on its past behavior. In the front office, the numbers can be used to conduct player modeling, create athletic scores, estimate the contract value of players based on age, position and other factors, predict compensatory draft picks and gauge value in prospective trades.

The Raiders' technology department is tasked with organizing the data necessary to make those decisions. From there, the analytical side of the equation is about making predictive conclusions.

"Part of our job is to be able to consider large amounts of information from many different sources, synthesize that information, and then make it presentable to the decision-makers in personnel and coaching," Christoff said. "We want to simplify complex decisions, guard against inefficiencies and identify hidden advantages. The analytics piece is complementary to the hard work done by the rest of our football staff, with the goal of maximizing the time and information available to us."

Analytics is often viewed as a complex subject, but it's the team's job to make it simple.

"Our goal is to cut through the noise," Singh said, "and spotlight the key details that matter most when making big decisions."

Nowadays, most NFL teams have their own in-house data systems. The Los Angeles Rams, for example, created a system called "JAARS" for their various staff members to access.

Thewes is in the process of helping create a similar scouting system for the Raiders. It'll be built to contain draft prospect write-ups, the team's draft board, free-agency information, background checks, game film, medical reports, basic stats, analytics and more. Naturally, that system being useful moving forward is dependent on the work of the Raiders' scouting department.

"There's a bunch of different ways that you can use numbers," Thewes said. "But at the end of the day, you have to have really good scouts, as well."

For Raiders fans, the most visible representation of the team's use of analytics will be Carroll's game management. When it comes to supporting that process, Paganetti, in particular, will play a crucial role.

"He's going to be working with me directly," Carroll said, "as well as the offensive and defensive staffs. He's got a great background. This world of analysis is something that really continues to grow."

As Carroll mentioned, Paganetti has a varied background. The Dartmouth grad was a scouting intern with the Dallas Cowboys in 2013 and an assistant coach at Belmont Hill School (Mass.) from 2012-2014. In 2015, he was hired as an analyst by then-Philadelphia Eagles head coach and current Raiders offensive coordinator Chip Kelly.

Kelly was fired by the Eagles in 2015, but Paganetti stayed in Philadelphia through the 2020 season and ended his tenure there with the title of assistant linebackers coach/game management. He was hired by the Jacksonville Jaguars in 2022 and spent this past season as their director of football analytics. The combined experience of working as a scout, coach and analytics staffer appealed to Carroll.

“Ryan understands everything,” Carroll said. “He’s been in it long enough that he brings a connection to the past, which I really like, and he can make sense of what we used to look at and how we look at things now.”

Paganetti will focus on game management and help work analytics into the overall coaching staff’s planning processes.

“Ryan has a tremendous, rich history of learning how to deal with the analytics part of it, but yet football as well,” Carroll said. “He won’t be familiar with the kinds of questions I’ll ask him, but he’ll be ready to handle the answers.”

On the personnel and scouting side, the analytics department gleaned valuable insight from how the Raiders handled free agency and the draft. They’re still relatively early in the process, but the internal hope is that the added emphasis on analytics will benefit the Raiders both during the season and in the offseason.

“We’re trying to get us all coming from different places, really, on the same page,” Thewes said, “in how we can learn and observe this first year and then build on it in future years. But as we go through the entire 12-month calendar year, I think we’re only going to get better in Year 2 and 3 and beyond.”

Why Raiders coach Pete Carroll is still 'bringing it' every single day
By Jeff Howe
July 31, 2025

HENDERSON, Nev. — Every member of the Las Vegas Raiders gathered together in a tight circle Sunday morning following practice, with head coach Pete Carroll pushing orders from the middle.

Then, from deep inside the scrum, a football soared straight into the air, followed by two players' rising hands until one victoriously swatted it back into the mosh pit. Carroll had orchestrated a competitive jump-ball drill between two players who had gotten into a shoving match earlier in practice. They went three rounds, and the entire team whooped and hollered the whole time.

"After you have a jump ball," Carroll smirked, "you can't be mad anymore."

The 73-year-old coaching legend emerged, somewhat surprisingly, from a quiet year of reflection to take over the Raiders. When Carroll and the Seattle Seahawks parted in 2024, those close to him believed he still had ample coaching years left in the tank, although no one really knew how he'd play it.

As it turned out, Carroll wanted some time to himself before determining the desire was very much still alive.

"I had to let the dust settle a little bit and get a feel for what that was like being out (of the league)," Carroll told The Athletic recently. "Once that cleared, the pursuit of the passion was too obvious."

With Carroll, the passion is understood. He went 181-131-1, including the playoffs, while coaching the New York Jets, New England Patriots and Seahawks over 18 seasons, highlighted by a victory in Super Bowl XLVIII. He also led USC to a 97-19 record with two national championships, one of which was later vacated.

Carroll, who will become the oldest head coach in NFL history this season, has thrived throughout his career with sharp charisma and an unmatched ability to maintain a high level of excitement in the building. Of course, his defensive acumen has always been an asset, as well.

It was all so clear with the jump-ball competition. It was simple on the surface, but it served as a perfect way to give the players a charge as they pushed through the grind of training camp.

Such things are a daily occurrence around here, even if it's in the form of a now-routine transitional practice period when the players bound over blocking pads as coaches and trainers jump around with heavy bags, swinging ropes and yelling as Rage Against the Machine blared in the background. It was a quick stretching drill that looked more like a scene from "Mad Max: Fury Road."

With the Patriots, there were stories of Carroll canceling practice and packing the players onto buses with kegs on their way to bonding events. With the Seahawks, Carroll opened the mornings with 3-point shooting contests. And to be sure, there are likely thousands of other comparable examples.

"I only know one way to do it," Carroll said. "I'm not doing anything different than I did when I was coaching at (Pacific) a million years ago. I'm just having fun coaching and making sure I affect as many people as I can. … I can't ask them to go if I'm not going, so I bring it every day."

But what is Carroll's pursuit?

He's tied for 17th with 170 regular-season victories and is one of three coaches to win both a national championship and Super Bowl. Carroll, who turns 74 in September, has a secure legacy and could have kicked up his feet in retirement without anyone batting an eye.

Carroll just isn't much of a feet-up kind of guy.

"You're either competing or you're not," he said. "I just like battling. I like competing. That's exactly what it is. The passion was alive and well. In chasing it, we wound up here with the Raiders."

Carroll's challenge in Las Vegas is real. The Raiders finished 4-13 last season, their worst record in a decade, and they haven't won a playoff game since 2002. They've fired three general managers and three head coaches since 2021, so the roster will need quite a bit more time to be constructed under the vision of Carroll and GM John Spytek.

Carroll is ready to compete, though. He was rarely far from a football field during his year off, watching games from junior varsity in high school to the NFL, where he has plenty of friends with various teams.

His son, Raiders assistant quarterbacks coach Nate Carroll, was with the Carolina Panthers in 2024. His other son, Raiders offensive line coach and run game coordinator Brennan Carroll, was at the University of Washington. Naturally, Pete Carroll had rooting interests from coast to coast.

Go figure, a football lifer like Carroll even found new ways to appreciate the game while he was between jobs.

"There are a million (ways)," Carroll said. "I'll give you an example about effort, how hard guys play the game or how hard they don't play the game. Snaps last about six or seven seconds. It's not that long to strain. I watched it from the kids all the way through into the league. They don't play as hard as they could. I made it a real emphasis for us in this camp and with this team. … We're going to play as hard as we're capable."

Not that Carroll has ever lacked for energy, but his message has backing. He's still running around the field as much as possible, putting his arm around a cornerback's shoulders while giving a lesson about the previous play or darting up to a tight end to slap his chest after a nice adjustment led to a quality catch.

Carroll most certainly still looks like himself on the field.

"It made it a really successful offseason because I could see things differently than I'd seen them before. You have to get away," Carroll said. "I tried to make this a really profitable year, as well. I feel like it's been invigorating. You see things a little differently. You have a clear mind."

GENERAL MANAGER JOHN SPYTEK

THE ATHLETIC

Raiders GM John Spytek is bringing Tampa Bay's 'no BS' philosophy to Las Vegas
By Vic Tafur and Tashan Reed
February 11, 2025

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers have won the NFC South four years in a row and have made the playoffs in each of the past five seasons, winning a Super Bowl ring in the process. There was a pretty simple rule for their success.

No BS.

So says Bruce Arians, the Buccaneers' former head coach who still works as an adviser for the organization. That's a major reason he expects big things out of new Las Vegas Raiders general manager John Spytek.

"You can't have a personnel department or coaching staff that doesn't work together," Arians said in a recent phone interview. "It just leads to the same bulls— of, 'Well, we don't have any players,' and 'Oh, they can't coach 'em.' They've got to work together so you know what you're looking for to build your team. The coaches and scouts were hand-in-hand … and Spy's been a big part of that."

It's a directive that Spytek has brought with him to Las Vegas after spending the last nine years in Tampa. Spytek is known for his eye for talent, and he worked closely with the Buccaneers coaching staff throughout his rise in the organization.

"He's really, really sharp, especially in evaluation — pretty much at all positions," Arians said.

Spytek was hands-on, which he promises to be with new Raiders coach Pete Carroll. He and minority owner Tom Brady were involved in helping Carroll hire his assistant coaches, including Chip Kelly as the offensive coordinator.

Spytek, 44, was a scout for the Philadelphia Eagles and Denver Broncos for 10 years before joining the Buccaneers in 2016. And, yes, he took his job home with him.

"I tell my wife all the time, the nature of a scout is to always be watching and observing, so I'm always watching and observing," Spytek said during his introductory news conference. "It's such a great quality. People will tell you the truth in this business if you find the right people, and our job as scouts … is to get to the root of who people are and decide whether or not we want to add them to our organization. That's ultimately what we're trying to do."

Spytek grew up outside of Milwaukee in Pewaukee, Wis., and dreamed of playing football at the University of Michigan.

That dream came true and led to his first scouting assignment — himself. After he arrived on campus in Ann Arbor and went through his first practice, he saw an immediate disparity in talent, which included a certain future Hall of Fame quarterback in Brady, then a senior. But all teams need "glue guys who do the dirty work," Spytek said, and the linebacker became a core special teams player at Michigan. Spytek also discovered the one thing he was really good at: watching game film.

A year out of college, Spytek got an internship with the Detroit Lions where he cut up film, filed scouting reports and drove players and coaches to and from the airport. A new dream was born, one Spytek recalled when he was sitting next to Carroll two weeks ago.

"When I dreamt about having one of these jobs, I always wanted it to be with an iconic franchise like the Raiders," Spytek said. "I'm not sure I ever got far enough in my dreams as a young kid in Pewaukee, Wis., that I could be sitting up here with the Raiders, but here I am."

Spytek saw firsthand how competitive the Raiders were last season despite their 4-13 record. In Week 14 in Tampa, the Raiders trailed by 4 points in the fourth quarter before the Buccaneers pulled away for a 28-13 win. Now, it's Spytek's job — along with Carroll and (from the shadows) Brady — to give the organization some stability and long-overdue success.

"There's just some teams where it means a little bit more," Spytek said. "There's just some teams where the NFL is better when they're crushing it. … I cannot be more excited to get started and to get started with coach Carroll here."

When Spytek landed his first full-time NFL gig as a college scouting assistant with the Eagles in 2006, he was surrounded by a loaded front office and coaching staff. GM Tom Heckert led a personnel department that included three future GMs in Jason Licht, Ryan Grigson and Howie Roseman. Head coach Andy Reid's coaching staff had five future NFL head coaches: Pat Shurmur, David Culley, Steve Spagnuolo, Sean McDermott and John Harbaugh.

The brain trust provided plenty of knowledge for Spytek to soak up.

"I tried to learn so much from every person that I was around," said Spytek, who spent five seasons with the Eagles, three each with the Cleveland Browns and Broncos and nine with the Bucs. "I don't pretend to have all the answers. I met so many wonderful people along the way that I worked great with (who) helped me get to where I'm at."

Spytek's breakthrough came when he was promoted to national scout with the Broncos in 2014.

Trying to find the right players was a rush.

"I get a natural high from watching guys compete," Spytek said last year. "It's hard to describe the joy when you find a player."

While Denver went on to make the playoffs for the fourth season in a row, the front office felt the team — led by Peyton Manning — was capable of more. That led them to fire coach John Fox and replace him with Gary Kubiak in 2015.

When Kubiak was getting up to speed that offseason, he leaned on Spytek.

"What I remember about Spy is he was one of the people that (was) giving me a grasp on the team, what I had, what they thought our strengths were, what we had to do to continue to move forward and have a chance to win a championship," Kubiak said in a phone interview. "He helped get me comfortable with the team so that I could get in there and work with my coaches and start to break down our needs and get ready for the draft. He was a big, big asset to me."

The Broncos won Super Bowl 50 in Kubiak's first season as coach.

"It takes certain people to be leaders of others," Kubiak said. "And Spy, that's what he's got in him. … He's a very upbeat, positive, good person that's very good at motivating others around him. They didn't want to let him down."

Every offseason in Tampa Bay, Spytek would address the media on the third day of the NFL Draft, as Licht, the GM, wanted to give his guy some shine. Spytek would list off each member of the front office who had a role in the draft process. There was a lot of talk about the family atmosphere in Tampa Bay, and Licht and Spytek were close.

"I worked with him 20 years ago with the Eagles," Licht said in a phone interview. "Our wives are the closest of friends, our kids are with each other every other day and we lived four blocks away from each other."

Licht and Spytek would often try to convince the other — with game film — that his opinion on a player was wrong. It became their schtick.

"He was my right-hand man in personnel," Licht said. "He is a very intelligent, confident person who is very collaborative. He is a very curious person who is not afraid to enter the unknown, and when we went through some dark times here, I relied on him to be the positive force."

In 2020, Licht needed a boost when the Buccaneers first started talking about bringing in Brady at quarterback — in what eventually would be a Super Bowl-winning move.

"The initial calls to Tom were from me," Licht said, "but putting the plan together, John kept telling me that we've been building this team for a few years and, 'If you build it, he will come.' So we coined it 'Operation Shoeless Joe Jackson.'"

In the real-life "Field of Dreams," Brady signed with the Bucs and asked Licht to assign him someone with whom he would meet weekly and go over the scouting reports of opposing defensive players. That was Spytek, who would meet with Brady for several hours every week.

"That's where John and Tom really forged their bond," Licht said.

"When they were here, whatever Tommy needed from the pro personnel department, Spy made sure he had it," Arians said. "It could be research on corners or defensive coordinators or whatever it was. They had a great pregame plan ready for him the week before."

Following their Super Bowl win, the Buccaneers brought back all 22 starters, including re-signing free agents Ndamukong Suh, Shaquil Barrett and Leonard Fournette. Tampa Bay became the first team in the salary-cap era to return all 22 starters the season following a Super Bowl victory. In 2021, the Bucs tied a franchise record with nine Pro Bowl selections, including eight either drafted or signed during Spytek's time with Tampa Bay.

“I think he’ll be excellent (as a general manager),” Arians said. “The Raiders have a good cap situation. He knows how to rebuild a roster because he was part of it in Tampa. We had four or five great drafts in a row, so he knows how to put it together.”

Spytek is proud of the way the Buccaneers roster was built but stresses there is “no perfect way” to do it.

“For us in Tampa recently, it was definitely draft and develop,” he said. “I think at the start of the season, 44 of the players that made the initial 53 were drafted or signed by us as undrafted free agents. I think all but two starters were.”

And he took some notes from Carroll’s early days with the Seahawks.

“I always admired the way that they started in Seattle, at the quarterback position in particular. They just kept taking shots and shots and shots,” Spytek said. “They traded, they drafted guys high, they found their way to Russell (Wilson). What an unbelievable move that was. He was a little bit different. He was under 6 feet at a time when most quarterbacks were over 6 feet, so (they were) willing to think outside the box a little bit.”

As all GMs do, Spytek will look to build the Raiders up through the draft. Much like he helped do in Tampa, however, he’ll also need to make savvy trades and free-agent signings. The roster needs a lot of work, but his track record gives plenty of reason to believe he’s capable of turning things around.

“It’s the best way to build a solid foundation of a team, and then to reward those players with second contracts because we know exactly what we’re doing,” he said. “But if the opportunity comes to sign a Tom Brady or a Baker Mayfield or trade for a Jason Pierre-Paul or Rob Gronkowski, just examples from my career, we will absolutely do that when the team is ready and the organization is ready for that.”

Why Raiders GM John Spytek and his wife, Kristen, are fighting for CMV awareness

By Vic Tafur

February 21, 2025

When John Spytek introduced his wife and two young sons at his Las Vegas Raiders introductory news conference last month, the team's new general manager called his wife, Kristen, his "rock."

"You're going to see my wife around a lot," he said. "She is going to be a big pillar in this community."

There are a lot of empty words at these types of proceedings, but those were not. The Spyteks are co-founders of the National CMV Foundation, which they started after their daughter, Evelyn, died in 2014 at just 21 months old. She was born with a cytomegalovirus infection, or congenital CMV, and died following complications from surgery.

CMV leads to more birth defects in the country than any other virus, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and yet many are still unaware of its potential damages. That's something the Spyteks hope to attack in the Las Vegas market, just as they did in their previous stops at Tampa Bay and Denver.

"It's more common than people think, and women and families have a right to know about CMV," Kristen Spytek said.

The foundation has grown in size and reach, becoming a national resource for families while raising money for research, diagnosis, screening, treatment and vaccine development. No such thing existed when Kristen was pregnant with her first child, when prenatal scans not only showed that Evelyn wasn't growing as expected but that her bowel appeared unusually bright on an ultrasound.

"We went in for the 19-week scan to find out if we were having a boy or a girl, and I can still remember the ultrasound technician quietly leaving the room and the doctor coming in and saying there were problems," John Spytek said.

Doctors did not mention CMV, or that it could be an infectious disease of any kind. Kristen, who had developed sinus-like symptoms, was left to search the internet as the list of all the problems that Evelyn was facing — the bright bowel, a small head as well as heart concerns — grew as she reached 32 weeks of pregnancy.

"And Google spit out CMV at us,'" John said. "And we read about it and it was just horrible. And we were like, 'That can't be what it is or they would have told us.' But that's what it was."

Evelyn was born at 36 weeks, weighing 3 pounds, 14 ounces, and within 15 minutes a neonatologist told the Spyteks that he thought she had CMV.

"They confirmed it 24 hours later and by that point, there is nothing you can do about it," John said. "Now, the science has advanced where if you could diagnose this in utero, you can actually do a blood transfusion and some other treatments to try and save the child."

John has a tattoo of the sound waves of Evelyn's heartbeat over his heart, and at times he will touch it and hear his daughter's laugh. It's a calming moment in what has been a tough and now rewarding process to educate people about CMV.

"It's preventable, is what we keep talking about," he said.

Evelyn was eventually diagnosed with epilepsy, cerebral palsy, hearing loss and vision loss. She died on Dec. 26, 2014, after the Spyteks had started the foundation because they felt that she and other babies and families were depending on them to learn about CMV and spread the word.

"The goal was to eradicate CMV in totality, and it turned out to be a pretty out-over-our-skis goal with how little CMV was talked about," John said. "So we wanted to raise awareness for expectant moms and families so that they don't have to go through what we did. And so that their children don't have to go through what Evelyn did, more importantly."

Cytomegalovirus is a member of the herpes virus family and, according to the CDC, between 50 and 80 percent of people in the United States have had a CMV infection by the time they are 40 years old. A CMV infection causes cold-like symptoms, such as a sore throat, fever, fatigue and swollen glands, but can also cause severe disease in babies who are infected with CMV before birth.

About one out of every 200 babies is born with congenital CMV and, according to the CDC, about one out of five of those babies will have birth defects or other long-term health problems.

Kristen, who has since given birth to sons Jack, 11, and Tommy, 8, has a marketing background and went to work right away to help create awareness.

"I wanted to set up a place for people like me — parents, caregivers and family members — to go and find information about this that was educational and informative," she said. "Not too scary, but geared towards prevention for families."

Some babies born with CMV don't show signs of it at birth and develop problems later, according to the CDC.

"We have been pushing for things such as research funding at the federal level, congressional bills and newborn screening," Kristen said. "A lot of babies are born without abnormalities or issues and then go on to have conditions such as hearing loss or epilepsy."

Moderna has been working on a vaccine for CMV, and says the testing is currently in Phase 3.

"There is still a ways to go," John said. "You learn that there is no quick fix to this and it's going to take years before people maybe don't get CMV anymore, but we're making progress."

There is also a need for prevention education. Women who work around children, such as preschool teachers and daycare workers who feed children and change diapers, are at increased risk, as are parents who share utensils with their children. One of the foundation's goal is to get CMV placed on the Recommended Uniform Screen Panel (RUSP), a list of disorders recommended to be screened for as part of universal newborn screening programs.

“That would require everyone to be fully aware of it,” John said of inclusion on the RUSP list, “and it would require doctors to educate the soon-to-be moms about the dangers of CMV and how you prevent it. It would shine a light on something that is a really big problem that people don’t know exists.

“People would be shocked how many kids are born with it every year.”

The foundation started with six members — family members and friends of the Spyteks — as an all-volunteer grass-roots group, and now has 11 board of directors members and four employees.

“We’ve raised a half-million dollars in our best years, but we still have a long way to go,” John said.

“We connect families regionally and state-wide, as well as with specialists,” Kristen said. “And we create a safe space online and elsewhere for these families to engage and support one another.”

And more and more future parents are learning about that space.

John worked for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers for the last nine years, and several members of the organization — including players — wore CMV-logo adorned cleats as part of the NFL’s annual “My Cause, My Cleats” initiative, including for last season’s game against the Raiders.

“It creates awareness that we can’t get anywhere else,” John said. “CBS did a 30-second camera shot of it and talked about CMV. And also, the energy that something like that gives to the base of our foundation and the parents that are in it every day … it’s astounding. They get so motivated.

“Finally, people are paying attention to us. Finally, the message is getting out.”

How John Spytek earned Tom Brady's trust: From Michigan to Tampa Bay to Las Vegas
By Dan Pompei
May 6, 2025

In a banquet room decorated for Christmas, a group of coaches' kids were entertained by Santa Claus. There were awesome presents for the Michigan football team — high-end swag, including commemorative watches.

The Wolverines were gathered at the Eden Roc Hotel Miami Beach the night before Christmas to prepare to play Alabama in the 2000 Orange Bowl, and this was a night of celebration.

John Spytek, though, wasn't feeling very festive.

He wouldn't be playing in the game. A redshirt freshman linebacker, Spytek was physically worn down from spending the last five months on the scout team and getting driven into the ground by Steve Hutchinson and Jeff Backus, both future NFL stars. He missed home. He wondered if he belonged.

It had been a long season that began with a shattered thumb in training camp. Playing with a cast, he then sprained his shoulder.

The week before Michigan's season opener against Notre Dame, he went all out in practice. The next day, after a Michigan win, Spytek was given a T-shirt in a team meeting. "Scout Team Player Of The Week," it read.

It was the highlight of his year, along with a November practice. That week, in preparation for Penn State, Spytek was assigned to play the part of LaVar Arrington on the scout team. Arrington was on his way to winning the Butkus Award, the Bednarik Award and the Lambert Trophy. Wearing Arrington's No. 11 was an honor, and Spytek took it seriously.

So did Tom Brady.

The senior quarterback threw a deep ball to running back Anthony Thomas, who ran a wheel route. Often, scout team defenders run hard and then ease up at the end so the offensive player can finish the play. But Spytek closed on the ball, reached out and batted it down.

Brady, unsurprisingly, would be more difficult to beat on game day. Down by 10 in the fourth quarter, he calmly brought Michigan back, throwing the winning touchdown pass with under two minutes remaining.

It wasn't the only time Brady flipped a game's script that season. There was a late touchdown drive to beat Notre Dame and two touchdown drives in the final 16 minutes to overtake Ohio State.

If not for Brady, Spytek and his teammates would not have been in Miami preparing for the Orange Bowl.

Spytek brought his meal back from the buffet at the Eden Roc and sat at a table with other redshirt freshmen who were feeling like him. They looked down at their plates and didn't say much.

Then someone walked up and put his plate on the white tablecloth.

"I think I'll have dinner with the young bucks tonight," Brady said.

Then the team captain and MVP was somehow one of them. For about an hour, Brady talked with the freshmen about nothing and everything, lifting their spirits and making them feel they belonged.

"It was a small glimpse of who he is, the grace he operates in," Spytek says. "He probably doesn't remember it. But the rest of us could never forget it."

It is more than an indelible memory. It was the beginning of a connection that would help make NFL history.

On New Year's Day, Brady led another comeback to beat Alabama in the Orange Bowl. Then, 11 years passed before he and Spytek crossed paths again.

Brady, a sixth-round pick, became arguably the most unlikely success story in the NFL's grand history, winning three Super Bowls and establishing himself as football's best quarterback.

After Brady left, Spytek finally got on the field at Michigan, playing 37 games and making 37 tackles over three years.

Then the Lions gave him $250 a week to run errands in the operations department. He bartended three nights a week to get by. Spytek began scouting with the Eagles and worked in Philadelphia for five years before becoming the Browns' college scouting director.

On the field before a 2010 game between the Patriots and Browns, Brady caught up with his Michigan classmate Aaron Shea, then the Browns' director of player engagement. Spytek moved in and reintroduced himself to Brady. The interaction didn't last more than 10 seconds before Spytek walked away, unsure if Brady remembered who he was.

Another decade went by. Brady had won his fourth, fifth and sixth Super Bowls and was widely considered the best quarterback of all time. But the partnership between Brady and Patriots coach Bill Belichick had frayed, and the Patriots somehow convinced themselves they would be better without him.

As the Patriots concluded that Brady was descending, Spytek was ascending. After three years with the Broncos, where he won a Super Bowl with Peyton Manning, he became the right-hand man to general manager Jason Licht with the Buccaneers.

In Tampa, Jameis Winston, the former first pick in the draft, arguably had the best season of his career in 2019 under new coach Bruce Arians. The assumption was that the Bucs would commit to Winston long term, even though he had led the league in interceptions.

Spytek's job, however, was to open his mind and the minds of others. Late in the season, he studied tape of veteran quarterbacks he thought might be available. Among them were Teddy Bridgewater, Drew Brees and Philip Rivers. One day, Licht walked into the draft room, which was adjacent to his office, and saw Spytek watching Brady. Spytek told him Brady's contract was expiring, and he didn't see any drop-off in his play. Licht chuckled.

Nobody respected Brady more than Licht. He was part of the front office that drafted him and spent seven years with him in New England. But it was almost impossible to envision Brady leaving the Patriots, let alone becoming a Buc.

Two days later, Licht approached Spytek at practice.

“I watched Tom,” he said. “He’s still pretty f—ing good.”

Licht and Arians decided it was worth a shot, even if it was the longest of long shots. Licht, Arians, Spytek, Rob McCartney, who was the director of pro scouting at the time, Mike Biehl, the director of college scouting, and Mike Greenberg, who handled contracts, devised a plan. They knew if their interest became public, it would create a firestorm that could affect other options if Brady stayed in New England, so they decided to keep their pursuit between the six of them and team ownership. They would use code words to describe their mission.

Licht asked Spytek if he really thought Brady might come to Tampa. Spytek, looking at the Bucs’ impressive depth chart, pointed out the roster would be a selling point.

“If you build it,” Spytek said, “he will come.”

“That’s from a movie,” Licht said.

And so they dubbed their project “Operation Shoeless Joe” after the Shoeless Joe Jackson character in “Field of Dreams.”

Anytime they spoke of Brady, they called him “Shoeless Joe.”

Licht became “Ray Kinsella,” the Kevin Costner character in the movie who built the baseball field that drew Shoeless Joe from the great beyond. They began calling Bucs owner Joel Glazer “Terrance Mann” after the James Earl Jones character who disappeared into the cornfield with Shoeless Joe.

They recited lines from the movie.

“Go the distance.”

“Ease his pain.”

Operation Shoeless Joe worked, and Brady told the Bucs he intended to play for them. But he still hadn’t officially parted ways with the Patriots. He told Licht he would visit Patriots owner Robert Kraft one evening to convey his intentions in person. The Bucs feared Kraft would convince him to stay.

Early the next morning, Spytek was stuck at a traffic light on his way to work. He picked up his phone. The first story on his Instagram feed was from Brady, thanking New England and saying he was going to take his football journey elsewhere. By the end of the day, he was a Buccaneer.

The Bucs closed their offices that day because of the COVID-19 pandemic. The first time Spytek and Brady met as Bucs was at training camp in a BioReference trailer, where both were getting nose swabs for COVID tests.

“Hey, Tom, John Spytek,” Spytek said through his mask. “We played together a long time ago.”

“Yeah, yeah, great to see you again,” Brady said through his mask. “It’s been so long.”

Spytek wasn’t sure Brady remembered the batted pass or the Christmas Eve dinner, but he was certain Brady had done his homework on him.

During Brady’s New England years, he met with Belichick leading up to games and was given a detailed report on the defense he would be opposing. In Tampa, he asked Licht for a similar arrangement. Licht suggested to Spytek that a couple of young scouts could handle the assignment.

“No,” Spytek said. “I want to do it. We can’t send a young scout in to meet with the greatest player of all time.”

Spytek wanted McCartney with him because he respected McCartney’s knowledge. Licht agreed and told Brady, who had questions about both.

“Are they going to know the league?” Brady asked.

Brady showed them a sample report of what he expected.

To prepare, Spytek put in the equivalent of a full day’s work, as he would before every meeting with Brady. He knew Brady would want a full report on the second nickel and fourth safety, as well as the star linebacker.

In their first meeting, they talked about the Saints for about an hour. It didn’t take long for Brady to challenge the information. Sptyek told him Marshon Lattimore was one of the best cornerbacks in the NFL. “He’s not Darrelle Revis,” Brady shot back.

Spytek warned him that Saints safety Marcus Williams could hurt him if he hung a ball up in the middle of the field. He described Janoris Jenkins as a twitchy corner who will play off and take chances and said if a quarterback is late with a throw, Jenkins could come up with an interception. Both players intercepted Brady.

The game was lost, but trust was won.

As the weeks went on, the meetings became casual and longer, sometimes lasting as long as 2 1/2 hours. Their conversations were about more than their upcoming opponent.

Often, the first 20 or 30 minutes of the meeting were about their experiences at Michigan. They laughed about how the strength coaches emphasized thick necks. By then, neither had Michigan necks as Spytek had become a marathon runner and Brady had spent years training for pliability.

Brady came to Tampa on a plant-based diet that excluded processed foods, dairy, gluten, sugar and nightshades. But at Michigan, it wasn’t quite like that. They reminisced about gorging on Cottage Inn Pizza at all hours, pigging out on Mister Spots wings, taking down deli sandwiches from Maize and Blue Deli and trying to bulk up with prime rib and cheese fries from Outback Steakhouse.

"I got to listen to it all, and then eventually was like, come on, can we get to the meeting?" McCartney said.

Brady took the prep work seriously, even if he knew his opponents as well as Spytek and McCartney before showing up for the meeting. He even wanted to meet before training camp joint practices. When it was established that he would play in a preseason game in Houston, he asked Spytek and McCartney to meet in their hotel the morning of the game.

"I need to be at my best because people are coming to watch me," he told them.

After their prep work was done, Brady often started storytelling, which he did about as well as quarterbacking. He talked about idolizing and hanging with Joe Montana, Steve Young and Dan Marino and playing golf with Phil Mickelson, Bryson DeChambeau and Aaron Rodgers in "The Match."

Despite an uncomfortable parting, Brady spoke reverently about Belichick and his processes, game planning and motivational techniques. He said playing for him helped him see the game from a defensive perspective, which empowered him at the line of scrimmage. Belichick taught him that certain defensive alignments meant he didn't have to concern himself with every coverage possibility. That helped him process more quickly.

He told tales of teammates, opponents, games, drives and plays. Brady gushed about Julian Edelman and Rodney Harrison, saying you almost had to kill them to get them off the field. He also expressed admiration for Danny Amendola, Dave Andrews, Rob Gronkowski, Matt Light, Wes Welker and others.

"When he talked about what made them special, it rarely was about how fast or skilled they were," Spytek said. "It was how tough they were and how much they loved to play. You got a peek into his mind about what was important to him."

Part of Brady's alchemy was that he seemed to remember almost every blade of grass he played on, but his recall appeared selective about the 2015 AFC Championship Game, when Spytek's Broncos beat Brady's Patriots.

In Brady's first season in Tampa, the Bucs won 11 games and made the playoffs as a wild-card team. Moments before the offense took the field in their first playoff game at Washington, Spytek noticed Brady reading something on the sideline. Brady put it down and jogged off. Spytek looked again at what he was reading. It was the report he and McCartney had given him that week.

"The last thing he did before walking on the field to start the playoff run that led to a championship was read the writeup we gave him," Spytek says. "It was one of the most poignant moments of my career."

Their work also affected Super Bowl LV. The scouting reports had a video element with 20 to 25 plays. After Spytek and McCartney showed Brady the video of Chiefs defenders before the Super Bowl, Brady gathered his receivers, tight ends and running backs to share the videos with them. It was the first time he did that, and it helped the Bucs put up 31 points in a one-sided victory.

As Brady ran through the end zone and headed for the tunnel after the game, he saw Spytek and his wife, Kristen, in the southwest corner of Raymond James Stadium. He stopped and changed directions. Brady bear-hugged Spytek.

Spytek had thought about what he wanted to say if this moment came.

“I want you to know that working with you has been the honor of my career,” Spytek told Brady.

“You’re awesome,” Brady said. “Love you.”

Nine months later, Spytek ran in the New York City Marathon to raise funds for the National CMV Foundation, a charity he and Kristen helped establish. Their daughter Evelyn had congenital CMV, or cytomegalovirus, an infectious disease that can be fatal. Evelyn lived until she was 21 months old.

Shortly before the marathon, Licht told Spytek he should tell Brady about why he was running. Spytek demurred, but Licht told Brady anyway. A couple of days later, the CMV Foundation received the most generous donation in its history, courtesy of Brady.

Brady played two more years with the Bucs before retiring at 45 with 23 NFL seasons behind him. Last year, he became a game analyst for Fox and was approved as a minority owner of the Raiders.

Before each of the three Bucs games Brady was assigned to, he visited with Spytek.

By January, the Raiders were searching for a general manager. Brady, not the typical minority owner, called Licht.

“We had a couple long conversations about Spy,” Licht said. “He knew him well, so I don’t really think he wanted reassurance. He was just kind of telling me, ‘This is what we want here. Do you think he would fit?’ And, of course, I said yes.”

Spytek was interviewed on a video call by Brady, Raiders owner Mark Davis and minority owners Egon Durban and Mike Meldman. Spytek had interviewed for the Raiders’ general manager job in 2021 but felt like he had no chance. This was different. Brady asked many of the questions. The interview was cut off after 90 minutes because Spytek had to fly to Nashville to interview with the Titans for their general manager position. But the Raiders knew everything they needed.

When Spytek agreed to become the Raiders’ general manager, Brady told him, “Just be you. That’s good enough.”

They have talked on the phone quite a bit since. Spytek keeps him updated on everything the Raiders are doing. Spytek says Brady asks many questions but has not objected to anything. “Cool, babe, trust you,” is a typical response.

Sometimes, they just talk about what’s happening in the league. “He’s as consumed with it as I am, and our love affair with the game is what we have most in common,” Spytek says.

Brady, aware of how his physical presence changes the dynamic in a room, contributes remotely for the most part. But when the Raiders were vetting quarterbacks, he came to Las Vegas for a few days. He met with Spytek and coaches to discuss the veteran possibilities. He spent another day with Spytek discussing college quarterback prospects.

“When we are looking at quarterbacks, we’d have to be fools not to involve him,” Spytek says. “Tom is the foremost expert on quarterback play I’ve ever been around.”

Of course, Raiders coach Pete Carroll was a driving force in the trade for Carroll’s former quarterback Geno Smith. But Brady endorsed the move. “He really respected Geno — the way he can process and throw the football,” Spytek says.

During the draft, Brady stayed away but was in constant communication and was on board with the selection of quarterback Cam Miller in the sixth round.

“He liked the way he threw it, his technique, throwing from the ground up and his motion,” Spytek says. “And he thought he had the potential to improve.”

Like Brady, Miller has a history of winning, having won two FCS national championships at North Dakota State and 32 of 35 starts at Solon High in Iowa.

Dating to their days together at Michigan, Brady shaped how Spytek thinks about quarterbacks — how they should comport themselves, which traits are essential and which are superficial.

Their football values, milled in Ann Arbor and reinforced in Tampa, are the same. What matters to both is the team above all, a wholehearted commitment, unrelenting perseverance and unadulterated accountability.

In Tampa and even at Michigan, they helped bring out the other’s best. Even if neither realized it, they have been intertwined for 26 years, all the while building for now.

After Spytek formally accepted the offer to become general manager, he received a text from Brady.

He looked at his phone and saw three letters, an acronym Brady was associated with during the time he and Spytek shared in Tampa.

“LFG,” it read.

Raiders make Crosby NFL's highest-paid non-QB: 'I want to be a winner'
By Vincent Bonsignore
March 5, 2025

Maxx Crosby has never hid his desire to begin and end his NFL career with the Raiders.

The defensive end and the team took a big step toward making that a reality Wednesday by announcing a three-year extension that keeps Crosby under contract through the 2029 season.

The deal is worth $106.5 million, with $91 million guaranteed. Crosby's $35.5 million annual average makes him the highest-paid non-quarterback in NFL history.

The Raiders, by handing him that contract, sent an emphatic message that Crosby is the face of the team and embodies everything the franchise wants to be about under new coach Pete Carroll and general manager John Spytek.

"This program is built around competition, and we're always in pursuit of finding great competitors that will help us build a great team," Carroll said. "And there's no way we could find anybody that is more focused and directed and committed to giving everything he's got to every opportunity he's going to get (than Crosby). And so for us to make this statement today, (it's) like it fits perfectly, and we're so proud to have Maxx be part of the organization."

Extending Crosby was Carroll and Spytek's first major decision with the Raiders.

Crosby, 27, had two years left on his previous deal but none of the remaining money was guaranteed. Still, there was no pressing need to get a new contract done. It was notable that Carroll and Spytek made Crosby a priority.

"This is obviously a big commitment and it's not lost on us how big that is," Spytek said. "But there's no one we'd rather do it with than Maxx and what he stands for and the way he plays the game and the passion."

It was a humbling honor for Crosby. The four-time Pro Bowler, whose 59½ sacks are tied for the fifth-most in the NFL since 2019, called it "an absolute blessing in so many ways."

"I have so many teammates I can thank. I have so many coaches I could thank," said Crosby, sitting next to Carroll and Spytek. "I have so many people in general I can thank, including these two guys right here, believing in me and giving me this extension."

Focus turns to winning

Crosby, with the contract taken care of, is now focused on chasing the one thing that's eluded him his first six seasons with the Raiders.

Sustained success on the field.

“It’s one thing to be the face of a franchise,” Crosby said. “But I want to be a winner.”

Crosby is giving Carroll and Spytek a vote of confidence by recommitting to the franchise. He could easily have balked at yet another regime change and asked for a trade.

The Raiders have one winning season since drafting Crosby in the fourth round in 2019. They are on their fifth coach and fourth general manager in that stretch, including ones that had interim tags.

It would have been understandable if he wanted to move on after the Raiders once again decided to clean house this offseason and fired coach Antonio Pierce and general manager Tom Telesco.

“Obviously, after the coaching change after the season there was a little bit of mystery,” Crosby said.

He instead decided to stay.

Crosby has forged a quick bond with Carroll, who is one of three coaches ever to have won a college national championship and a Super Bowl. He’s given Crosby confidence the Raiders will be headed in the right direction soon.

“I don’t know if we go a second without competing or going back and forth about whatever it is,” Crosby said. “But that’s the type of people I want to be around, people that are winners, people that are competitive and love the game.”

Crosby is excited to remain with the Raiders. Now he wants to continue building his legacy with the organization.

“You look at all the legends that created what this brand is, and that’s winning. Ted Hendricks, Marcus Allen, Charles Woodson, the guys like that, the ones that I look up to, that’s what I want to solidify. And those guys are all about winning,” Crosby said. “That’s truly all that matters to me. So, I know these guys are all about the same thing. The labels and all that stuff is cool, but when we’re not winning, it’s like, what are you the face of? I want to be the face of winning, and that’s truly all that matters to me.”

Geno Smith ready to 'run through a wall' for his coach and mentor Pete Carroll
By Levi Edwards
April 7, 2025

There's a lot of symbolism in seeing Pete Carroll walk step for step behind Geno Smith as the quarterback entered his introductory press conference.

When the two first became acquainted in 2019 with the Seattle Seahawks, Smith's trajectory pointed toward being a backup for the rest of his career. A second-round pick to the New York Jets in 2011, he would have six unfulfilling seasons between them, the New York Giants and the Los Angeles Chargers. In that span, he had a 12-19 record as a starter, completed less than 60 percent of his passes and threw seven more interceptions than touchdowns passes thrown.

"Geno went through a lot to get here," Carroll said, sitting to the left of the quarterback. "There were a lot of years in there when he had to take the second seat in playing the quarterback position. But what I realized in him early on, not before we got him but once we got him and got to know him, that he was able to take every single day with a clear thought that, 'I may play the very next play and I'm not going to miss that opportunity.' And he did it for a number of years."

In 2022, Smith earned his right to a second act. After serving as Russell Wilson's backup for three seasons, he was thrust into the starting role once the Seahawks moved on from Wilson. In the season opener, ironically against Wilson and the Denver Broncos, Smith outdueled his predecessor in a 17-16 victory. He threw two touchdowns while going 23-of-28, which would set the tone for Smith ultimately becoming one of the more accurate quarterbacks in the NFL.

In Smith's two seasons as a starter under Pete Carroll, he threw 50 touchdowns, was selected to two consecutive Pro Bowls and won the 2022 NFL Comeback Player of the Year.

But most importantly, they won games.

Seventeen to be exact, five more wins than Smith accumulated as a starting quarterback in his first six seasons in the league.

"My mindset has never changed, it's the same thing every day," Smith said. "Go out there and compete, go out there and win, do what it takes to be the best. Even when I was the backup, that's how I felt. I think that allowed me to stay in it and now that I get the opportunity to start, nothing changes. I'm still in my mind that same guy who had to fight, scratch and claw for the opportunity and that will never leave me."

Now with the Raiders, Smith and Carroll continue to build their football legacies on one another. After spending a year away from coaching, Carroll is tasked with revitalizing another NFL franchise in similar fashion to his tenure with the Seahawks.

This led to him going out of his way to vouch for Smith to General Manager John Spytek, which led to the team trading away their extra third-round pick for him and signing him to an contract extension. It seems to be good timing considering Smith is coming off a 10-win season in 2024 in which he completed over 70 percent of his throws with a career-high 4,320 passing yards.

"He's going to bring us great stability and belief in the kind of things that we stand for," Carroll said. "His habits are so, so stellar. The way he works, the way he looks at the game, the way he looks at the challenges of it all is exactly in line with the way we think and so, he'll represent us in magnificent fashion."

"When it comes to inspiring people, inspiring guys to go out there and play hard, I mean this guy's got it in spades," Smith said of playing for Carroll. "He's legendary, his track record speaks for itself, but he competes every single day and that's what I love about him."

Smith knows what he's capable of doing with Carroll in his corner. The goal isn't just picking up where they left off, but shifting things into the next gear.

"I think there is unfinished business and I think when people think about my story, Coach Carroll is a big part of that," he said. "He gave me a opportunity when not many people would've. And he saw the hard work I was putting in, he saw the things behind the scenes that I do that allow me to get this opportunity. But to be able to play for him and again to be a part of this organization, it means everything to myself and my family.

"I was just telling this man I'll run through a wall for him, and he knows that. And I'll do the same thing for my teammates and for this organization."

By Jason Reid
August 8, 2025

HENDERSON, Nev. – Two pillars of the Seattle Seahawks' success are cornerstones of the Las Vegas Raiders' latest rebuilding project.

Pete Carroll and Geno Smith – formerly Seattle's head coach and starting quarterback, respectively – have reprised their leading roles in Las Vegas, joining the franchise's ambitious makeover from the owner's suite to the field. In addition to luring the Super Bowl-winning coach and Smith, a two-time Pro Bowler, controlling owner Mark Davis brought in several minority partners recently, including seven-time Super Bowl-winning quarterback Tom Brady.

The reorganization featuring high-profile names has breathed new life into a once-prominent organization that has appeared to be lost in the desert for years. Now, Carroll and Smith, who occupy the most important jobs on any NFL team, start anew after departing from Seattle unceremoniously.

At 73, does Carroll still have what it takes to direct another spectacular turnaround as he did in Seattle, and before that in the college ranks at the University of Southern California? Will Smith, a one-time journeyman backup who blossomed into a productive starter under Carroll, finally stop the Raiders' quarterback carousel of the past two seasons?

Raiders fans are eager for the answers to those questions, hoping the team is on the right path finally after making so many wrong turns. In the Raiders' preseason debut Thursday, Smith went 1-of-3 for 15 yards on one series in Las Vegas' 23-23 tie against the Seahawks.

With eyes wide open, Carroll and Smith jumped in. They're where they want to be, and eager to help change the Raiders' sad story.

"This opportunity for us to be together here, at this time in our careers, is really just great fortune for us," Carroll said. "I know him as well as I've known a quarterback. And to bring him into this program, he's the guy we needed. He's the leader we needed."

On another scorcher here (the temperature would hit 106) late last week during training camp, Smith encouraged his teammates to stay focused. He did his part by making several nifty throws and remaining upbeat throughout the morning practice as drenched fans cheered while braving the heat at the Raiders' team headquarters.

That's the energy Smith has provided daily since he arrived from Seattle in March in exchange for a third-round pick in the 2025 NFL draft (with the pick, the Seahawks selected former Alabama quarterback Jalen Milroe). The Raiders also assumed the remaining $31 million on Smith's contract, helping the Seahawks with their salary cap.

Through his words and deeds, Smith has pushed players to raise their expectations, "and he really has spoken well when he's had his chances," Carroll said. "But it's more than that. It's what he's done. From the moment he's gotten here, he's the first guy in the building and the last guy out of the building. That whole thing.

"He does everything about it in between. He lives it. And he has performed great. Like out here today. From the moment he walked in the building, he was the offensive leader. He was the voice. And he didn't have to do anything special to do that. He just does what he does. He's such a worker. And he's so competitive and so consistent."

For a generation, the Raiders have been anything but competitive and consistent.

The franchise has produced a winning record in only two of the past 22 seasons. The Raiders' most recent postseason victory (2003) came during former President George W. Bush's first term in office. Excluding interim coaches, Carroll is the team's fourth head coach since 2021.

Change must start with the players, Smith believes.

"For me, it's about integrity," he said. "When you want to establish a winning culture, when you talk about trying to be a winner and having a winning team, players have to be accountable. We've all got to be coachable, we've all got to be accountable to one another, and we've all got to be accountable to ourselves.

"To do that, the players have to take control of the locker room and say, 'This is who we're going to be.' That's non-negotiable. We have to be able to trust each other. We have to be able to depend on each other. We have to have that foundation if you really want to go out there and try to build something great. As a team leader, I'm going to keep talking about that and keep leading [by example]. I've seen it work."

Beginning the 2022 season, Smith had been a backup in Seattle for two seasons. He was on his fourth team since entering the league as a second-round pick of the New York Jets in 2013 out of West Virginia. After Seattle traded longtime starter Russell Wilson to the Denver Broncos, Carroll named Smith the team's starter, reviving Smith's career.

That season, Smith led the NFL with a 69.8% completion percentage. He had 4,282 passing yards and 30 touchdowns with 11 interceptions. Smith was named to his first Pro Bowl, and he was selected the Associated Press Comeback Player of the Year. The Seahawks made the last of their 10 playoff appearances under Carroll.

Although Carroll directed the best 14-year run in Seahawks history – which included two NFC Championships and a Super Bowl title – in 2023 they failed to advance past the divisional round since the 2014 season. Before the 2024 season, team owner Jody Allen and Carroll agreed to part ways. With Carroll off the sidelines and in an advisory role last season, Seattle missed the playoffs in consecutive seasons for the first time since the 2008-2009 seasons.

The Seahawks and Smith failed to make progress on the contract extension Smith wanted, leading to his departure. When Carroll, who still has the fire in his belly to coach, joined the Raiders, Smith and his supporters hoped the men would be reunited.

For Smith, rejoining Carroll was the best-case scenario, said Quincy Avery, Smith's personal quarterback coach.

"Whenever you get the opportunity to go back to a coach who you're already really comfortable with, and who champions you, it's a great situation," Avery said in a phone interview. "Pete Carroll is someone who supports Geno in the building. When you have that, you have the opportunity to take your game to another level."

Wanting Smith to feel more supported than he did at the end of his time with the Seahawks, the Raiders signed him to a two-year, $75-million extension that includes $66.5 million guaranteed. In their actions, the Raiders have shown Smith that he's their guy, and "he will have and added chip on his shoulder," Avery said. "Geno is always very motivated just by what he expects from himself.

"But just the way in which he left [Seattle], the opportunity he probably should have still had there, the money that he probably should have gotten there … he had to go somewhere else to get it. For anyone, that's going to be frustrating. I mean, he's human. So, yeah, it definitely does add fuel to the fire. And when you add that to the way Geno works just normally, it only will motivate him more for sure."

The perpetually upbeat and ultra-competitive Carroll isn't lacking for motivation, either.

Anyone who watched Carroll work as he restored USC to national prominence and then made the Seahawks into perennial playoff participants knows he wouldn't be satisfied in a figurehead gig. Carroll needs to be in the action – teaching, encouraging, competing.

It's no surprise that banners displaying Carroll's mantra, "Always Compete," now hang at the Raiders' complex. In terms of winning in the regular season, Carroll is the Raiders' most successful coach since the late John Madden, who last led the team in 1978.

Carroll, who turns 74 on Sept. 15, shows no signs of slowing down. At practice, he displays more energy than many people half his age, bouncing around, barking orders and fist-pumping while interacting with players jubilantly.

Smith expected nothing less.

"He was coaching me last year even when he was out, so I knew" Carroll wanted to return to the sidelines, Smith said. "I've always had great reverence for him, and our relationship has grown so much. Man, I look at him like a grandfather. I just want to continue to make him proud. We're here at the right time together."

Recharged, Carroll is back in his element.

"I'm doing it 'cause I love doing it," he said. "To have a chance to be back in the league again, and with what Mark did with the whole ownership group, and Tommy [Brady] being here, the whole thing had a fresh start. Now, let's go. Let's be wide open. Let's go for it."

With the Seahawks in their past, Carroll and Smith are doing that. And after so many frustrating starts and stops, the Raiders hope the proven duo will take them far again.

RB ASHTON JEANTY

Why the rise of Ashton Jeanty suggests bright NFL future
By Ryan McFadden
July 28, 2025

In 2018, Jim Davis had no choice but to go against his beliefs. As the football coach for Naples Middle/High School, a school for military dependents in Gricignano di Aversa, Campania, Italy, he had never started a freshman on offense.

He had had freshmen on the roster; sometimes five to six that rarely saw the field unless the game was out of hand.

But 14-year-old Ashton Jeanty forced Davis to think differently.

Jeanty had been in Italy since he was 12 because his father, Harry, was a commanding officer on the naval support base in Aversa, a small town near Naples. Even though the school didn't offer tackle football to middle school students, Davis was enamored by Jeanty's athletic ability in sports like basketball and track.

He recalled Jeanty beating high school kids in sprints. And one day, Davis watched Jeanty nearly throw down a dunk on the basketball court.

"That took a lot of power for a kid, who was maybe 5-foot-6 [and] 12 or 13 [years old], to explode like that," Davis, 54, told ESPN. "Most kids don't even get to do that when they are 18."

At Naples, the talent varied with kids rotating in and out of the base yearly. Some players had prior knowledge of football, while others were soccer players seeking a new challenge. As a result, Davis never relied on the same offensive scheme.

But when Jeanty, who was born in Jacksonville, Florida, joined the squad, Davis' game plan was simple: Give him the ball by any means necessary.

During one of the Wildcats' early practices, Jeanty displayed his power, flattening a senior linebacker. From that moment, Davis knew Jeanty was the real deal.

"I was putting my money on him before the season started... He put that kid right on his butt," Davis -- who has coached at Naples since 2016 --recalled.

Jeanty was a man among boys, said Davis. He traveled across Europe, dominating competition on military bases in Spain, Germany and Belgium. The closest road game was a nine-hour bus ride, and since the field on the naval support base didn't have lights, Jeanty played home games at the nearby Carney Park military recreational facility, located within an extinct volcano crater.

He put his team on his back weekly. He guided the Wildcats to a 6-0 record while recording 1,223 yards and 21 touchdowns.

Davis would have loved for Jeanty to stay at Naples for the next three seasons. In a sense, he was the team's security blanket. Whenever the Wildcats needed a winning drive, they knew Jeanty would deliver. But Davis knew Jeanty's destiny was calling him to return to the United States, where he could test his skill set against stronger competition.

From afar, Davis watched Jeanty turn into a star at Lone Star High School in Frisco, Texas, and later a Heisman Trophy finalist at Boise State. And now with the Las Vegas Raiders, Jeanty is being tasked with a similar assignment that Davis gave him seven years ago in Italy.

When the Raiders drafted Jeanty sixth overall in April, it was evident that he would play a major role in the offense. No running back has been drafted higher since Saquon Barkley was taken second overall in 2018. Raiders coach Pete Carroll, who wants a run-heavy offense, has likened Jeanty to his former player and Seattle Seahawks running back Marshawn Lynch. And during the offseason, Jeanty played the majority of his reps with the first-team offense.

In Year 1, the Raiders want Jeanty to help turn around the league's worst rushing attack (79.8 yards per game) in 2024. Davis and those who have watched Jeanty's brilliance up close know that he is ready for the challenge.

"We made a big deal [about this] to him. Everybody's watching you, and he embraced the thought of it," Carroll said. "And so, it's going to be really exciting to see what happens."

Living in Tampa, Florida, Christian Albright still can't wrap his mind around the idea that his former Naples teammate has found his way to the NFL.

At the time, he didn't know he would share the field with someone who would eventually rack up the second-most rushing yards (2,601) in a season in FBS history, trailing only Barry Sanders in 1988.

Nevertheless, the signs were there.

"He must have been running for 200 to 300 yards a game," Albright, 23, said. "He was bullying kids."

Each week, Jeanty was bound to do something spectacular, said Albright. During the Wildcats' championship game, Albright recalled that Jeanty -- who was lined up as an outside linebacker -- recorded a pick-six. But his fondest memory of Jeanty didn't involve him making defenders look silly with his speed and power.

"He threw my first touchdown [reception]," Albright said. "I will always cherish that moment."

Jeanty started the season at quarterback because Davis just wanted the ball in his hands. The Wildcats incorporated a ton of quarterback-designed run plays to allow Jeanty to beat opponents with his legs.

After three games, Davis decided to scrap that plan and put Jeanty at running back.

The games were relatively high-scoring, and some came down to a touchdown. With Jeanty on the field, the Wildcats knew they would walk away victorious.

"As long as we had the ball, I knew we had the opportunity to score with him in the backfield," Davis said. "A lot of times [teams] would put nine in the box, but if he hit a seam and you didn't take him down, he was gone."

The game was too easy for Jeanty in Italy. So much so that even Davis knew his top player had to face tougher competition and get more exposure.

When Jeanty returned to the United States to attend Lone Star, it took longer than three weeks to show that he could be a menace in the backfield.

Unlike Davis, Jeff Rayburn's introduction to Jeanty didn't involve running the rock.

Jeanty was a sophomore when he lined up at safety during a scrimmage ahead of the 2019 season. He ran downhill and annihilated an opposing ball carrier near the sideline, generating oohs and aahs from everyone around him.

"It was one of those hits where everybody stops and gets juiced up," said Rayburn, who has been the head coach at Lone Star since 2013. "That was our first glimpse of who he was going to be, even though he was a defensive player."

When Jeanty joined the Rangers, Marvin Mims Jr. was the focus. Mims, a third-year wide receiver for the Denver Broncos, holds the Texas high school state record for receiving yards in a career (5,485) and in a season (2,629 as a senior in 2019).

They also had running back Jaden Nixon, now a redshirt senior at UCF, who rushed for 821 yards and 14 touchdowns that season.

Given the established talent on offense, Jeanty played safety and defensive end during his first season at Lone Star, when the team went 14-1.

As a junior, Jeanty transitioned to slot receiver/running back and made an impact. Jeanty totaled 55 catches for 816 yards and seven touchdowns. He also had 383 yards and a score on 44 carries.

"He's a natural at everything. There's not a position on the field he couldn't play," Rayburn said of Jeanty, who received all-state honors as a wideout.

Robby Jones, the coach at Aledo High School in Aledo, Texas, called Jeanty a "dynamic wide receiver." In his team's victory over Lone Star in 2020, Jeanty managed to collect six catches for 120 yards. Once Jeanty became the Rangers' lead running back as a senior, he made things even more challenging for Aledo.

The Bearcats took pride in their run defense. Jones said they focused heavily on Jeanty, hoping to prevent him from generating a big play each time he touched the ball. Despite the Bearcats beating Lone Star by 10 points, Jeanty finished with 16 carries for 158 yards and three touchdowns.

"If we had [Jeanty], we would've had him in the backfield the entire time," Jones added. "Our defensive line kept him bottled up at some points in the game, but when you have an exceptional athlete like that, he's going to get his yards."

Jeanty filled up the stat sheet. He racked up 2,645 all-purpose yards (1,835 rushing), 41 total touchdowns and ran for 150-plus yards six times.

Amid Lone Star's 9-3 campaign, College Station High School in College Station, Texas, was the only team to hold Jeanty to under 100 yards. Defensive coordinator Chance Locklear said the key to containing Jeanty, who had 71 yards on 23 carries in the 55-21 loss, was catching him on the edges before he gained steam.

He didn't want his linebackers to get into one-on-one matchups with Jeanty, so they had a safety play over the top. Even though the Cougars contained Jeanty on the ground, he still managed to record 70 receiving yards.

"We felt good about the defense we had that year," Locklear said. "But when he turned up the field and went vertical, we didn't feel like we had the speed to run with him from the linebacker spot."

Even though Jeanty was difficult to scheme against, coaches admired how he brought out the best in their players. At the same time, they wondered why Jeanty had been overlooked in the recruiting process.

"When we see a guy like [Jeanty], we look at how they are being recruited. Right away, we felt like this guy was way underrecruited," Jones said.

When college coaches visited Ryan High School in Denton, Texas, head coach Dave Henigan occasionally offered unsolicited advice.

Even though recruiters were there to meet former Denton and current Texas linebacker Anthony Hill Jr. and other players on his roster, Henigan would tell them to go to Lone Star if they were looking for a running back.

"I would say 'I've been a coach for 22 years and the best running back I've seen was at Lone Star,'" Henigan said.

Henigan's message wasn't received by most. Jeanty was a three-star recruit, and Kansas and California were the only Power 5 schools to extend an offer.

"Nobody listened," Henigan said. "I mean, Boise State listened. But I don't know what people were looking at. To be honest, recruiting is a very inexact science."

Air Force coach Troy Calhoun and defensive coordinator Brian Knorr listened. The Falcons were among the 15 schools to extend a scholarship offer to Jeanty. Knorr was heavily involved in Jeanty's recruiting process.

Knorr said Air Force pursued Jeanty, intending to make him a slot receiver. He admired Jeanty's "no quit" attitude and his strong running ability. Knorr had no hard feelings when Jeanty decided to sign with Boise State. Knorr even respected that Jeanty spent his entire college career with the Broncos instead of jumping into the transfer portal.

"It's funny, the best running back in the country was in the [Mountain West Conference]," Knorr laughed. "He's so loyal."

Jeanty's presence at Boise State came at the cost of Knorr having to face the recruit he once coveted. As a freshman in 2022, Jeanty recorded just 53 rushing yards against Air Force.

The following year, he exploded for 225 total yards and two touchdowns to help Boise State clinch a berth in the Mountain West title game. Knorr said Boise State didn't try to disguise its game plan. The Falcons knew the ball was going to Jeanty, who had 19 touches in the win.

Knorr said Air Force focused on gangtackling and having multiple eyes on the ball. Still, there was nothing the Falcons could do to slow down Jeanty.

"In the biggest game of our season, [Jeanty] caught a screen and made six guys miss [on a 75-yard touchdown]," Knorr said. "In his last two years, he got so strong that you had to be a great tackler to bring him down as one guy."

Jeanty's final season at Boise State was monumental. Sometimes Davis had to get up early in the morning, Italy time, to bear witness to his former player making college football history.

"It was like watching him run around on the field as a freshman in high school," Davis said. "It was eerily similar."

Jeanty averaged 185.8 yards per game and collected 29 touchdowns -- tied for the seventh-most in a season in FBS history. He rushed for at least 200 yards on six occasions while propelling the Broncos to a 12-2 record and a spot in the College Football Playoff, where they faced Penn State in the quarterfinals.

Former Nittany Lions defensive coordinator Tom Allen coached against plenty of talented running backs during his career. When Allen was watching Jeanty's game film in preparation for the matchup, he saw shades of former LSU running back Leonard Fournette -- the fourth pick in the 2017 NFL draft.

"Fournette would probably be the closest comparison because [Jeanty] is so powerful. That's where it's different," said Allen, now the defensive coordinator at Clemson. "His legs are so big and strong, and he throws people off."

Allen and his squad were excited to test themselves against Jeanty. The Nittany Lions had a formidable defense in 2024. They were sixth in the Big Ten Conference in rushing yards allowed (101.9 per game) and third in points (16.5).

Jeanty was 131 yards shy of tying Sanders' single-season rushing record. Penn State, however, didn't plan on letting him rewrite the record book.

"We have a lot of guys who want to play in the NFL. I said, 'Well, here you go. You are going against an NFL running back,'" Allen said.

In Penn State's 31-14 win over Boise State, Allen's defense accomplished its goal of containing Jeanty, but it wasn't easy. Indeed, Jeanty didn't score a rushing touchdown and was held to 3 ½ yards per carry -- the lowest since 2023.

The Nittany Lions had a layer of players at the point of attack so that Jeanty wouldn't break loose for long runs. And yet, he still managed to record 104 yards even though it took 30 attempts to do so.

"To have that kind of objective from your opponent and still be able to get yards shows you [how great he is]," Allen said.

"And that's why I sought him out after the game. I have so much respect for him. He's one of the best running backs I've ever coached against."

During the first night of the NFL draft, Davis hoped Jeanty was selected early for selfish reasons. He woke up around 2 am to watch the event, and the quicker Jeanty was selected, the sooner he could go back to bed.

Fortunately, the Raiders granted his wish.

Las Vegas and Jeanty seemed like a perfect match before the franchise made its draft choice. When Carroll was introduced as the head coach, he emphasized the importance of having a strong running game to support the quarterback. Meanwhile, general manager John Spytek liked how the Philadelphia Eagles won a Super Bowl based on an efficient rushing attack led by Barkley.

Due to the Raiders' emphasis on a strong rushing attack after being near the bottom in every major rushing category, Jeanty will be asked to do some heavy lifting right away.

He walked into the building as the clear-cut starter. And thus far, Las Vegas has treated him as such. Jeanty is expected to be a focal point of the offense along with quarterback Geno Smith, tight end Brock Bowers and wide receiver Jakobi Meyers.

If the Raiders truly want to have a shot at competing for the postseason, Jeanty must live up to the expectations he placed on himself.

There's confidence within the building that he can.

"All the hype is real, and I'm super excited to block for him," Raiders center Jackson Powers-Johnson said. "Maybe get some celebrations. He's a great TikTok dancer, so maybe get my hips loosened up a little bit."

Said Meyers: "If he could come in and do what I think and hope he can do, I feel like it's going to be a fun year for us."

Even though the Raiders were not in pads during OTAs and minicamp, offensive coordinator Chip Kelly said Jeanty's performances against Oregon and Penn State in 2024 provide optimism for the 21-year-old's potential on offense.

Both games demonstrated to Kelly that Jeanty can play at a high level, regardless of the competition.

"That was a little bit different league for Boise at that time, but not for Ashton in terms of what he did," Kelly said. "[I'm] excited to see him."

Just like Jeanty's freshman year at Naples, he will be asked to play an integral role from the jump. He has shown that he's up for the challenge.

"From being the top dog here as a freshman year to [not getting] to run the ball again until his senior year, a lot of kids might have quit, but he was determined," Davis said.

Raiders Rookie Ashton Jeanty Is on a Path to Greatness. Stay out of His Way
By Adam Caparell
September 5, 2025

Ashton Jeanty is strolling through the Fremont Street Experience, a sort of Times Square West teeming with neon lights, street performers, and colorful characters. The Raiders' sensational new running back drove through downtown Las Vegas in a '68 Chevy convertible under the blistering afternoon sun to get here, but he's barely broken a sweat. Fans swarm to snap pics and shout, "Raiders!" and (presumably referring to their fantasy football teams) "You're in my lineup!" All Jeanty, whose biceps are popping out of his muscle shirt, can do is smile and keep it moving as security guards clear a path like they're offensive linemen. A lucky few civilians get to dap him up.

Was it like this during his previous trips here?

"The last two times were a little more low-key," he says.

The 21-year-old Jeanty is sculpted like a Marvel character and already anointed as a generational talent following his remarkable junior season at Boise State, where he was the Heisman Trophy runner-up. Chosen by the Raiders as the number six overall pick in this year's NFL draft, he had a breakout performance just 24 hours ago, in his second preseason game. His official professional debut is three weeks away. If he seems like a big deal now, just wait until he's breaking tackles and trucking defenders on Sundays.

In person, though, Jeanty is not larger than life. He's five-foot-eight and 208 pounds—pint-size compared to a bruising running back like the Ravens' Derrick Henry. But if you've seen his college highlights, you're a believer. If you missed or dismissed them because Jeanty did his damage in the Mountain West Conference and not the Big Ten or SEC, rest assured that the hype surrounding the Young YAC ("yards after contact") King is legit. And any reservations about Jeanty's ability to bowl over defensive backs, shed tacklers, and ram his way into the end zone were blown to pieces against the 49ers.

"I don't really shy away from contact, and once I make my read, I get north and south quickly. If you're in the way, that's your fault," says Jeanty. "Everybody doesn't like that. I don't know why I like it. Maybe I'm a little bit psychotic."

Best described as an explosive punisher, Jeanty has a rare combination of speed, power, agility, and vision. A three-down running back who mentally and physically taxes defenses, his skill set has been compared to those of backfield legends like LaDainian Tomlinson, Emitt Smith, and Barry Sanders. Rightfully so: He authored one of the most historic seasons we've seen from a running back in college football history last year, when he accumulated the second-most rushing yards (2,497) prior to a bowl game. Only the legendary Sanders—whom Jeanty considers the GOAT RB—had more: 2,628 in 1988.

"That dude, what he did last season, it wasn't street legal. He was unbelievable," says Brian Jones, a college football analyst for CBS Sports. "He was phenomenal in the sense that everyone knew he was going to get the ball and they still couldn't stop him."

That's how Jeanty wound up as the highest drafted running back since Saquon Barkley became the second overall selection in 2018. After too many years of teams undervaluing the position and prioritizing the pass game, it's once again cool—and lucrative—to be a dynamic NFL running back. Franchises now seek and reward rushers who can break off big plays plus catch passes, instead of paying a pair of workhorses to divvy up the load.

Barkley's bonkers 2024 campaign reminded teams around the league why having a home run hitter in the backfield always will be good for business. After signing a big (by RB standards) free agent deal, Barkley sliced and diced defenses all the way to Super Bowl LIX, where the Eagles waxed the Chiefs. A month later, Philadelphia blessed Barkley with a contract extension that made him the highest-paid running back in NFL history.

"Saquon's done a great job at putting great things on display for the running back position and showing our value to the team by winning the biggest game possible," says Jeanty. "Not only that, there's so many other great guys [at the position] like Christian McCaffrey, Bijan Robinson, Jahmyr Gibbs. Me getting drafted as high as I did showed the value is coming back."

The Raiders believe Jeanty can be Saquon 2.0 and immediately jolt their offense, along with the team's prospects of competing for their first AFC West title in 22 years. Since the franchise moved to Las Vegas in 2020, the Raiders have had just one playoff appearance and sputtered to a 4-13 record last season, their worst in a decade. The offense finished dead last in rushing yards per attempt; that's why they gave Jeanty $32 million guaranteed in his rookie contract. (Barkley's the only running back with more guaranteed money in the league, at $38 million.) "Your value is shown by how much you're paid," says Jeanty.

Jeanty got his start playing football in Europe, of all places. His father, a commanding officer in the Navy, moved the family to Italy for a few years, and Jeanty put up huge numbers as a freshman on the military base's high school team. Home games were held in a volcano; away games played in other countries. That made for interminably long road trips, but he got to see the world.

The family returned to the States before Jeanty's sophomore season. Despite racking up stats as wide receiver and running back at Lone Star High School in football hotbed Frisco, Texas, it was Boise State that earned his commitment after he blew away the coaching staff during a recruiting visit. Before he became the Broncos head coach, Spencer Danielson vividly remembers watching Jeanty smiling throughout an exhausting workout. Three years later, Danielson, who was promoted in 2023, marvels at how mesmerizing it was to watch Jeanty break off big plays like it was nothing. "You'd be like, What did we just witness?" says the coach.

"He puts defenders in conflict every time he touches the ball," says Danielson, "because he gets so low to the ground and he's so powerful and explosive and has elite balance that a defender doesn't know how to deal with. Do you go low? He might stiff-arm you and he's got the breakaway speed to be gone. If you come too high, he's going to run over you like a freight train."

By the age of 16, Jeanty knew he had what it took to be an NFL player, even though the big-time universities mostly ignored him during the recruiting process. He played basketball and ran track and field in high school, too, but those sports took a back seat to football when the offers began to arrive.

"Once I got my first offer, I was like, It's over with," says Jeanty. "It doesn't matter where I play at, it could be a D-III school in the middle of nowhere. NFL scouts are going to find me and I'm going to make it to the NFL."

It's fitting that Jeanty landed with the Raiders, an organization supported by a group of season ticket holders known as The Black Hole, who dress up in frightening costumes on game day. At Boise State, famous for its blue turf, he became known for his Michael Myers–like stance in the backfield, where he would stand in the stiff, upright posture of the Halloween slasher. As he scanned the defense pre-snap, he'd plot who was going to get carved up on his next carry.

Sadly, the pose has been laid to rest in Las Vegas. Raiders offensive coordinator Chip Kelly informed Jeanty that he needed to switch things up to the more traditional athletic, hands-on-thighs stance. Raiders Nation is now calling him Silver Surfer, reflecting his heroic role in the silver-and-black family. "I like it—but Michael Myers is better," he says with a sigh. Jeanty knows the deal—as a first-year player, you follow orders. But once he proves himself, perhaps Michael Myers will be resurrected. "I gotta have a great rookie season, then I can sneak it in there," says Jeanty. "It's too legendary. It's going to make its return."

Jeanty thinks he's capable of finishing his rookie campaign with 1,500 yards rushing and 300 yards receiving. Only six backs in NFL history have rushed for 1,500 yards or more in their first season. Edgerrin James (1999) is the only rookie in league history to eclipse the stats that Jeanty's chasing. "I want to go after something that people don't think is possible, because I know I can achieve it," he says.

The Raiders haven't exactly been shy about letting Jeanty know what they expect out of him: all-pro production. "They let me know every single day that I'm the guy," says Jeanty. "They're counting on me to do some special things in this offense." New head coach Pete Carroll, who loves to run the ball and won a Super Bowl in Seattle with a hyper-physical Marshawn Lynch at running back, has told Jeanty that all eyes are on him. As he goes, so goes the offense.

Should Jeanty approach or even surpass his lofty goals, it's hard to fathom how anybody earns Offensive Rookie of the Year honors over him—including the number two pick in the draft, Travis Hunter. Jeanty—who missed taking home the Heisman Trophy by the narrowest margin since 2009 and therefore becoming the first winner from a non-power-conference school in 34 years—will always have a natural rivalry with Hunter, who captured college football's top individual honor last year. Hunter spiced things up last fall when he made some comments about Jeanty that got Boise State fans in their feelings. Basically, Hunter said that what he was doing as a two-way player was unprecedented (true) and that we've seen lots of running backs have huge seasons (not wrong). For the record, there's zero animosity.

"I have nothing against him," says Jeanty. "He knows that. I know he has nothing against me. We've talked and we're cool. But if the media likes that we're against each other, go ahead."

Just because things are copacetic between the two doesn't mean Jeanty will hesitate to run over Hunter, who is expected to play offense and defense for the Jaguars, should he end up in the running back's crosshairs. "We'll see," Jeanty says with a laugh. Jacksonville visits Las Vegas in early November.

Despite his obvious physical gifts, Jeanty believes that breaking tackles is a mental challenge. All those YAC yards, he says, are a product of his supreme self-confidence—he's just built differently, thanks in part to a military-like discipline that he picked up from his father.

“Who wants to hit it harder? Who wants to run through somebody’s face? You can’t teach that mentality,” says Jeanty. “My will to win and be the best is the most special thing about me.”

The biggest question for Jeanty’s NFL career—beyond whether he can top Barkley’s 2024 campaign, when the Eagles star ran for 2,005 yards and 11 TDs in the regular season before averaging 124.8 rushing yards per game in the playoffs—is if he’ll remain elite a decade from now. We may be amidst a renaissance of the running back, but the position’s longevity (or lack thereof) hasn’t changed.

NFL teams have rightfully been reluctant to commit major money once a running back reaches the age of 30. More often than not, production levels plummet after a decade in the league, as time and the accrued bumps and bruises inevitably slow down even the most dynamic rushers. When every big hit is practically equivalent to a car crash, and you’re touching the ball upwards of 20 times per game, the wear and tear on one’s body is staggering—especially at Jeanty’s size. Is he built different enough?

“He’s lethal, but it’s going to come down to if this guy can stay on the field and guys can block for him,” says Jones. “If he can continue to elevate the running back position, if he stays healthy, he may find himself in the same situation as Saquon.”

Jeanty, who like most athletes these days talks about creating generational wealth for his family, is well aware that the odds aren’t great of staying at the top past 30. But he points to Frank Gore, a similarly sized rusher who played 16 years in the NFL and will almost certainly one day be enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, as the outlier.

Still, “the hype, the money, what people are tweeting about [Jeanty] is not going to affect him,” says Danielson. “It doesn’t matter if everybody is patting him on the back or telling him he sucks, he’s not going to change and he doesn’t want to fit in the mold of what people tell him he should be.”

When Jeanty walks into one of the poolside restaurants at the Fontainebleau Las Vegas for lunch the day after the 49ers game, the bartender immediately recognizes him and asks how he’s feeling. “Solid,” says Jeanty. Even though he’s an infectiously positive person who appreciates the fervent fandom of Raiders Nation, you’ll never catch him tipping his cards. “I’m never going to tell you exactly how I’m feeling,” says Jeanty. “No matter the circumstances, even if my body is hurting. I won’t say I’m a hero, but I can’t let people see weakness in me.”

Nor will you ever see him juking linebackers out of their shoes in anything but his beloved No. 2. At least as a Raider. The guy just about everybody calls “Deuce” had to dig deep—six-figures deep—into his pockets to make sure that he could rock the number he’s worn all his life in Las Vegas. But Jeanty didn’t think twice about paying kicker Daniel Carlson (who earmarked half of the proceeds to charity) for the No. 2 jersey because it’s the number other members of his family wore during their ball-playing days.

He’s proud to carry on the tradition. It’s also a declaration. “I kind of think of it as more than a number,” says Jeanty. “It’s me showing that I’m second to nobody.”

Exclusive: More than food for thought, RB Ashton Jeanty and Raiders are perfect match

By Tyler Dragon
September 15, 2025

HENDERSON, NV – The pregame meal is the same every gameday for Las Vegas rookie running back Ashton Jeanty.

Jeanty's tradition is to eat egg whites with spinach and preferably watermelon and blackberries as fruit. If he's feeling extra hungry, he'll indulge in some French toast. When the Raiders have a primetime game like Week 2 against the Los Angeles Chargers, Jeanty will have some pasta for lunch.

Enough protein and carbs to take on the load of being the Raiders' feature running back.

By the time Jeanty takes the field for pregame warmups, he's ready to go and fired up.

Well, actually, the former and not the latter. Jeanty prefers to go into a game calm.

"I'm a gospel guy these days. It used to be rap," Jeanty told USA TODAY Sports in an exclusive interview. "I like to just be kind of more calm. I feel like rap kind of gets me too over the top, ready to crash out. I just need to chill before the game."

Jeanty's pregame music choice is fitting because it's almost like divine intervention that he landed with the Raiders at the No. 6 overall pick in the 2025 NFL draft.

Jeanty's grew up watching running back Marshawn Lynch when he starred for the Seattle Seahawks for then head coach Pete Carroll. Fast forward to now, Carroll is head coach of the Raiders, Jeanty is his star in the backfield and Lynch is a mentor figure for the rookie.

"Following the footsteps of lguys like Marshawn. He's been around," Jeanty said. "He's been giving me advice."

Furthermore, the Raiders selection of Jeanty was a full-circle moment for his agents Al Beglinger and Henry Organ of Disruptive Sports. Beglinger and Organ are Bay Area natives and lifelong Raiders fans.

"The first picture in my life as a baby was wrapped in a Raiders blanket," Beglinger recalled to USA TODAY Sports.

To put the icing on the cake, Jeanty is the two agents' first ever first-round pick.

"We had to keep our composure and keep our cool," Organ said to USA TODAY Sports. "Like this is crazy. Our first first round draft pick is a Las Vegas Raider…We were like, 'Wow, what are the odds to that.'"

Jeanty is fresh off a final collegiate season at Boise State in which he amassed 2,601 rushing yards, the second-highest single-season rushing total in FBS history. A rushing output that earned him the right to be a Heisman Trophy finalist.

Statistics and accolades that made him an ideal fit in Las Vegas.

Falcons' Michael Penix Jr. and other left-handed quarterbacks in NFL history

The Raiders had a massive need at running back prior to the 2025 draft. Las Vegas had the worst rushing attack in the NFL last season. The franchise hasn't had a running back eclipse 1,000 rushing yards since Josh Jacobs in 2022. Las Vegas paltry ground game is why many mock drafts predicted Jeanty would wind up in Silver and Black.

"The run game wasn't very explosive last year or in the past few years, so I think that's why they really made the commitment to get me. Get a guy who can make big plays and really get the run game rolling," Jeanty said. "It's a big deal, honestly, just that they have that belief in me. That gives me all the confidence in the world. Whether things are going good or bad, that you know this organization, everybody around has trust in me, and brought me here specifically for that reason."

Jeanty already reached the end zone for the first time in his NFL career in a 20-13 Week 1 win against the New England Patriots.

"I'm so excited for him," Raiders quarterback Geno Smith said. "Just as he grows throughout his career, throughout the season, all the experiences."

Jeanty's got bigger goals in mind, though. He hopes he can contribute to the Raiders achieving more team success. The Raiders have finished below .500 the past three seasons, and the franchise hasn't earned a playoff berth since 2021.

If Jeanty helps the Raiders get to the postseason and he surpasses 1,000 yards rushing along the way, he might have some NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year hardware, too.

His pregame traditions are a sign he's prepared for the challenge.

"It's definitely possible," a smiling Jeanty said. "It's definitely something I want to win for sure."

Will Laki Tasi be the latest rugby to football success story?
By Ryan McFadden
August 15, 2025

HENDERSON, Nev. -- When Laki Tasi took a trip to Grubbies Burgers and Hawaiian BBQ in Queensland, Australia, last September, he was given more than a meal to satisfy his hunger.

Tasi was enjoying a double patty burger when he had a conversation with his friend and the restaurant's owner, Ben Niumata. They discussed life in depth until their conversation shifted to the NFL.

At the time, Tasi was a member of the Ashgrove GPS Rugby Club of the Queensland Premier Rugby Union and was largely unfamiliar with American football. However, the NFL fan Niumata was strongly convinced that Tasi's size, 6-foot-6 and 346 pounds at the time, was better suited for the gridiron.

"He was like 'You should try the NFL,'" Tasi recalled. "He [saw] my potential... I didn't see that [in myself] on that day."

Niumata, nicknamed "Sweet," helped Tasi get his foot in the door. Niumata connected Tasi with a manager, Zen Ginnen, the founder of Ginnen Sports Management Group. Ginnen encouraged Tasi to try out for the NFL Academy in Gold Coast, Queensland, eventually leading to his selection for the NFL's International Pathway Program.

Tasi's young football journey has taken him to Las Vegas, where he is competing for a roster spot on the Raiders. Tasi doesn't have experience like his teammates, and didn't know anything about his new coach Pete Carroll until he signed as an undrafted free agent in April.

But Tasi's progress since rookie minicamp in May has left an impression on the 73-year-old coach and the organization.

"It's a real treasure just to watch him develop," Carroll said.

Tasi, age 21 and one of seven siblings, played rugby for most of his life. As a rugby player, Tasi was a part of a community league when he was 12, then transitioned to rugby union in high school. Rugby union consists of 15 players on the field, compared to 13 in league.

Despite plenty of years as a player under his belt, Tasi didn't see a prosperous professional rugby career on the horizon.

Tasi, a native of Goodna, Australia, didn't have a clear idea of what was next in his life. He prayed about the opportunity to get into football. Although Tasi knew the development process was going to take time, it was worth the risk.

Over time, Tasi developed a mindset that he would use to navigate the uncharted waters of football. A year before joining the NFL IPP program, Tasi -- who at one point weighed around 450 pounds -- went through a weight loss journey, shedding between 100 to 150 pounds while playing rugby.

Tasi also worked at a warehouse for three years to help his parents pay the bills. Tasi says his days were long, and sleep was hard to come by. He stacked boxes from 3 am to 2 pm. After work, he went home, took a quick nap, ate, and trained until 9:30 p.m.

"That was a grind and hustle," said Tasi. "[But] that's how I got my mindset to focus."

Tasi said he spent 10 weeks of training with the NFL IPP program was tough. Learning how to compete against defensive lineman, Tasi had to spend hours watching film and performing combine-style drills. "Everything was happening all at once, which wasn't easy," he said.

Tasi joined the Raiders with a bit of comfort level at defensive line. But following rookie minicamp, he was presented with a whole new challenge: He had to join the offensive line. The move to offense required him to learn a whole new playbook.

Tasi put his head down and embraced the challenge.

"It's been quite hard, but you just gotta keep learning," he said.

On a scale of 1 to 10, Tasi admitted his knowledge of football was around two when he started. Through four weeks of training camp, Tasi said he's at a 7.

He has relied heavily on veterans including offensive tackle Kolton Miller, guards Alex Cappa and Dylan Parham, and center Jordan Meredith to grow accustomed to the linemen position. He hasn't been afraid to ask questions regarding play calls, footwork and hand placements.

"He's huge," Meredith said of Tasi. "...You always want a big guy to be able to play the sport. You see them all the time, and you're like, 'That guy needs to play football here in high school.' So for him to come in and slowly start to get that strength and put it towards football, it's pretty cool seeing that."

In June, Carroll said Tasi, currently listed at 373 pounds, was his "favorite player" to watch. Although Tasi grabbed the attention of Carroll, the 21-year-old lineman didn't know anything about the Super Bowl-winning coach's rich history until he researched him ahead of rookie minicamp.

Eventually, Tasi developed a strong connection with Carroll, calling the 73-year-old a second father.

"I was like, 'Man, this guy has an aura,'" Tasi said.

The Raiders' preseason opener against the Seattle Seahawks was a momentous night for Tasi. To celebrate, Carroll allowed Tasi to walk out for the coin toss along with quarterback Geno Smith, defensive end Maxx Crosby and punter AJ Cole.

Carroll and players have commended Tasi's development, which was noticeable during last week's matchup that resulted in a 23-23 tie. Playing right guard in the fourth quarter, Tasi used his immense size and power to pancake Seahawks defensive lineman J.R. Singleton while running back Chris Collier rushed up the middle for a three-yard gain.

"Most of us played football when we were 10 years old," Carroll said. "He started a couple of months ago, and so it was exciting to see him do something and have fun out there."

Said Meredith: "He would go in the wrong direction. ...Just [to] see him go out there and dominate the way he did was awesome."

Tasi said learning football at the highest level has been scary. He understands he has a long way to go, but is hopeful that he can have a career in the NFL. Although the team has admired Tasi's development, making the initial 53-man roster will be a challenge. Tasi has received third-team reps during training camp, playing behind starter Jackson Powers-Johnson and backups Caleb Rogers and Atonio Mafi.

The Raiders, however, could sign Tasi to the 17th practice squad roster spot reserved for international athletes across any of the 32 teams if he does not make the roster.

During his process, Tasi has used Jordan Mailata as his biggest source of inspiration.

Mailata, a former rugby player from Sydney, Australia, never played a snap of football before he joined the NFL IPP program and was selected by the Philadelphia Eagles in the seventh round in 2018.

Mailata has started in 69 games in five seasons. In 2024, he was named second-team All-Pro while helping the Eagles beat the Kansas City Chiefs in Super Bowl LIX.

"Hopefully one day I can do that," Tasi said.

Goodna to the Gridiron: Laki Tasi's unconventional journey to the NFL

By Rachel Gossen
August 29, 2025

At 6-foot-6, 373 pounds, Laki Tasi may look like he was born to play football, but it wasn't a thought in his mind until quite recently.

In fact, he hadn't really even heard of the NFL.

So how does a 21-year-old Australian rugby player end up a Las Vegas Raider?

His unlikely journey started during a conversation with the owner of one of his favorite burger shops.

Hailing from Goodna, Australia, Laki is the youngest of seven children in the close-knit Tasi family. Their parents immigrated from Samoa to Australia with a fierce determination to provide their children the best opportunities possible.

"It's always about family," Laki said. "My work ethic comes from them. They worked their butt off from the start and now, I want to do the same for them."

The Tasi household was centered around family, loyalty, faith and rugby.

Rugby isn't just a sport, it's a livelihood for the Tasis. Two of Laki's older brothers went pro, including Tautalatasi Tasi, who currently plays for the Houston SaberCats. The sport was so big in his family that it seemed his path to it was already paved.

"Seeing my see my brother on TV, [my parents] were very proud to see him on the TV," Laki said. "Like, 'Look, that's the main example that you've got to do once you grow up. That's what you got to look up to.'"

But Laki's journey to the pitch was far from scripted.

He didn't begin playing until age 12 – an anomaly by Tasi family standards. And when he did, it wasn't bravado that held him back. It was kindness. Towering over his siblings in both stature and spirit, Laki was a gentle giant, tipping the scales at over 450 pounds but with a tender heart.

"He picked up rugby union and rugby league pretty quickly, just because of his size," Lama Tasi, the oldest brother, said. "You know, just natural size. But, I think, he's probably too kind, you know, because he's so big he was scared that he's going to hurt people."

"I wasn't too serious on the sport," Laki said. "I was really unfit. Basically, just played 10 minutes at the game. It's like 60, 70 minutes full game. But I was playing 10 minutes max. I was so unfit."

Once he finished up school, he started clocking hours at a local warehouse, a job that felt more like a sentence than a stepping stone. The question loomed: Is this it?

A switch flipped in Laki, who wasn't about to be satisfied with the way things were.

"I think he realized, 'I can't keep living my life the way it is working in a warehouse,'" Lama said. "I think he realizes he was destined for bigger things."

Dawn shifts at the warehouse. Afternoon training. Late-night gym sessions.

Sleep became a luxury. Ambition, a necessity.

"I felt like, you know what, I'm just gonna press the press the gas, and obviously a straight full throttle on the career," Laki said.

Ben "Sweet" Niumata, owner of Grubbies Burgers & Hawaiian BBQ in Brisbane, has seen Laki grow – and grow and grow – since the age of 5. As Laki shed weight and honed his physique, Niumata began to see something more than a rugby player.

He saw potential. NFL-sized potential.

He picked up the phone and called Zen Ginnen of Ginnen Sports Management Group to get Laki on the agent's radar. The only problem? Laki didn't have a highlight reel. So Niumata helped him build one.

A year later, Ginnen showed up unannounced to one of Laki's rugby matches. Niumata spotted him from the corner of his eye and grabbed Laki before he stepped onto the pitch.

"We didn't actually know he was going to be there until he walked in," Niumata said. "I remember stopping Laki, just grabbing his jersey and go, 'Everything that we trained for during the week, everything we practiced for, just throw it in the rubbish. I just need you to manhandle guys as if you were playing football because there's a guy here who's come to see you.'"

Laki did just that.

"It was actually the best I've ever seen [him] play," Niumata said. "And when I think about this whole story, I always look back to that day because that was pretty special."

A week went by and Laki was at the forefront of Ginnen's mind.

"Zen called me and said, 'I can't stop thinking about this kid.' And I said, 'Bro, I've been saying this for like two years because I couldn't stop thinking about it either,'" Niumata recalled. "That's why I was so persistent because I couldn't get over it too, especially when you're seeing the story of Jordan Mailata and all that kind of stuff. It's kind of like, well, we've got a kid just as big, just as strong, very mobile, very agile as well."

They urged Laki to try out for NFL scouts at NFL Academy in Australia's Gold Coast – about an hour drive from Goodna.

Laki had never watched an NFL game. But curiosity kicked in.

"As soon as I searched up the YouTube about Jordan Mailata and the NFL IPP," he said, "I realized how big it is."

A week after tryouts, Laki got the call that would change it all.

"Hey, we want you at IPP. Congratulations and we'll see you at work in January."

The NFL's International Player Pathway program was established in 2017 with the initiative to find talented international athletes and grow the sport of American football globally. The 10-week training camp has produced NFL athletes such as former Raiders fullback Jakob Johnson (Germany) and Philadelphia Eagles tackle Jordan Mailata (Australia).

"I was speechless. I was about to cry, but there's no point of crying because I feel like I've done that work. You know?" Laki said. "I mean, like, I push myself hard. But the only thing that really got into my head was my family."

Having watched all of his brothers and sisters find success in different avenues, Laki wanted to be the next to set out and make his way in the world. However, leaving them meant crossing the ocean and being a 14-hour time difference away from the people he saw every day.

Though it was daunting, Laki's confidence didn't waver.

"I said to my parents, 'I don't know what to do in this career, but if I've got to do something, I might as well do it.' So, I just prayed and prayed to God and that was my answer to get through the football process."

His brother Sani Tasi put it simply: "It took him a leap of faith to step into the IPP program. Everything is happening so fast. The only thing with Laki, he's a type of person that once he has his mind set to something, he won't stop until it's finished. He will grind all the way. He loves to grind."

"I could never be prouder [for] him, what he's achieved," Sani added. "A lot of kids just tend to give up on their dreams, and he's proven that you can anything's possible if you just take the opportunity by both hands."

In January of 2025, Laki hugged his parents and siblings goodbye to head to IMG Academy in Bradenton, Florida.

"That 10 weeks took a toll on me," he said.

It wasn't just the playbooks, the drills, the endless hours of film study. It was the ache of being 9,000 miles from everything familiar in his first time living away from his family.

"I think that first five weeks, I was just like, 'Man, what am I doing?'" Laki recalled. "But I know in my heart, if I just keep on going and try and find my feet, this is where your purpose is going to be. This is where your pathway is going to be. It's just a part of the journey."

Ten weeks had gone by and he stood on the turf before NFL scouts at the University of South Florida's Pro Day, along with a dozen other international hopefuls, ready for the chance to showcase their skills.

The stakes were clear: this was the one shot to impress and earn his shot.

Multiple teams expressed interest in Laki following the pro day and the Raiders invited him to headquarters for a workout. He met with defensive line coach Rob Leonard as well as the team's trainers and General Manager John Spytek.

Soon after, he signed his contract to become a Las Vegas Raider.

"I was just very proud," Laki said. "I started breaking down."

It wasn't just a contract; it was the moment that proved everything he worked for had been worth it – and would continue to be.

In Las Vegas, things switched up again for Laki.

Though he'd been learning how to play defensive line, Pete Carroll and the coaching staff felt his raw talent would be better on the offensive line, meaning he now had even more to learn.

It was a pivot that required humility, resilience and another crash course in a sport he'd only just begun to understand.

"At first, my stance was terrible," Laki laughed. "I tell you that, like it was shocking. I was just nervous; my hands were shaking. [I felt like] this is gonna be a long day. Once the coaches pulled me to the side, like, 'Hey, look, we're gonna teach you from the from the bottom and work your way up,' that set the bar for me, just easing my anxiety."

Slowly, steadily, through the grind of camp, he began to transform. His teammates in the trenches took notice.

"He's developed a bunch," Jordan Meredith said. "I mean, seeing him from day one, he's never played football before, so coming in and learning what a Ron-Lou is, or whatever the play call is, and then now, like he would go the wrong direction and now he's out there – you guys all watched the film probably or saw the game – just [to] see him go out there and dominate the way he did was awesome."

So much so that Carroll made Laki a game captain for the team's preseason opener in Seattle, a symbolic gesture for a player who, just months earlier, had never played a down of football.

"It was important to me to celebrate the fact that he's playing in his first football game in his life," Carroll said.

"The fact that he played in the game and did some positive things, that's a long, long ways to come," the head coach added. "Most of us played football when we were 10 years old. He started a couple months ago, and so it was exciting to see him do something and have fun out there, and I saw a little celebration after a good block. To me, it's a real treasure just to watch him just develop."

For his family watching from Australia, it was undoubtedly an emotional moment.

"He was trying to figure out and navigate what was for him, what is his purpose? What are those talents and gifts God's given him?" his sister Sia Tasi said. "And he's found that fortunately, and yeah, it's quite pleasing to see as a sister because you hope for the best for your siblings."

Though the NFL is not a world Laki grew up in awe of, he now can't imagine doing anything else.

"I thought I would be chasing rugby as a dream, but NFL just came out of nowhere. And I just thought, 'Why not?'

"I am falling in love with football, learning the game. I give so much respect to the players and how they do about their game. It just shows the love of the game. That's the main thing for me to do is just give back to the game. And you know, just say, thank you."
